COURT CONDON, NO. 54, F. OF A. MEETS Mondays evening of each month in Armory Hall, lodge room. Visiting brothers are requested to meet with us. A warm welcome awaits you.

"Each team limited to 12 men, each player to be booked on one team only."

This clause appeared in The Globe's issue of July 3rd in the Fourth of July program and also on the tri-colored, advertising program compiled and printed by The Globe for Messrs. Hunt, the druggist, and Williams, the jeweler. Among some of the business men there appears to be a controversy regarding that provision. For the benefit of its readers, The Globe will state that the said clause was inserted on the program at the request of the Official Athletic committee consisting of Fred Edwards and Oscar Veatch, in the same manner as another provision governing field events was also placed on the program. The clause referred to was not intended to work a hardship on any team but rather to prevent any two or more defeated teams booked in the tournament to form a nine from the better players of two or more teams or to secure additional players, to win the series. The provision was fair, just and necessary. No one maintains that the said program was official but the clause at issue was official in that the request that it be printed came from official sources—the committee in charge of athletics. Programs issued at fairs, or at celebrations of any kind, are always considered unofficial unless otherwise designated.

An Astoria brewer is manufacturing a popular drink called "near beer," for consumption in dry counties. It is said to look like beer, smell like beer and taste like beer and if you drink enough of it, you will get full. Most of the country press along the O. R. & N. has acknowledged receipt of sample cases and pronounced it good. That settles its status.—Edi'al Oregonian. It's Maltona that makes Brother Harvey envious. It's advertised elsewhere in these columns. Col. Scott has so well diagnosed the Astoria product that he too, must have received a sample case. Come, fess up!

The death of John F. Caples, of Portland, who died at his home there last Friday morning, removes one of the best lawyers from the ranks of the Oregon bar. For years he bore the title of judge though he never occupied a position on the bench. He was one of Oregon's best speakers and a conscientious and patriotic citizen.

The persistence with which the Portland Business College insistently hammers away at quality is most admirable. If there is any one feature on which special stress should be placed in educational matters it is thorough work. This splendid school has an advertisement in our columns to which attention is called. Any one interested in a practical education should write for a catalogue of the Portland Business College.
