COURT CONDON, NO. M. F. OF A MEETS Mondays evening of each month in Armory Hall lodge room. Visiting brothers are requested to meet with us. A warm welcome awaits you.

The primary election system is growing in favor because the people wish to rule through their servants and not to be ruled by bosses. In Oregon the old convention system is dead though politicians of the old school are doing all they can to discredit the new law. The people have regained their political prerogatives and they mean to cling to them. In Washington the primary law has brought many candidates before the voters—good men who would not have entered the political arena under the old convention system. Governor Cummings of Iowa, has proved himself to be thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the direct primary method of selecting candidates for office by calling a special session of the state legislature to so amend the Iowa direct primary law as to make it applicable to the emergency caused by the death of Senator Allison. Under the governor's call the legislature was convened in special session August 31.

When a traveling theatrical troop can remain in a town the size of Condon for a full week and play every night to comfortably well filled houses, one may truthfully remark that Condon is the queen city of the Interior, and is not to be rated with other more or less sleepy towns in Eastern Oregon. Again we say, keep your eye on Condon, the Wheat City.

A western congressman is quoted as saying that when he first entered Congress he wondered how he ever got there, but later on he wondered how any of them ever got there.

Speaking of political issues of the day—nobody but the spellbinders who are now committing their speeches to memory and rehearsing the more dramatic passages.

Well, the only pessimists in Condon now are those who are wondering how to house 2,000 people here in 1910.

ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Hallie Rice returned Monday from a week's visit in Portland and The Dalles.

Mrs. Luella Vaughn returned Monday evening from a few days visit with Portland friends.

Among the Lone Rock people in Condon the first of the week were: R. G. Jones, A. Neil, Joseph E. Foss, I. C. Bennett, Mrs. J. Madden and Miss Dora Madden.

A large drove of cattle passed through town Monday evening from Grant and Wheeler counties on its way to the Wilkins place at Clem where they will be fed and fattened up for the Portland market.

E. C. Rogers returned Monday from a trip to Shaniko to look after his hotel interests and reports that everything is going on nicely and that Bob Palmer is one of the busiest men in the little city.

M. D. Atkins and family, of Fox and Mr. Miller and daughter of Salem, passed through town Tuesday on their way to Condon. Mr. Miller will take the train for Salem where he will teach school this winter. Mr. Adkins will visit with relatives and friends at Condon a few days before he returns home.—Monument Enterprise.

Your neighbor would probably enjoy this paper as well as you do. Lend him your copy.

R. L. Hunt left Monday morning for Portland where he is to take a position as traveling salesman for Woodard Clarke Drug Co. As Mr. Hunt's itinerary takes him over the three northwestern states, he will be making calls on the local trade several times a year. Mr. Hunt's initial trip is being taken this week in the counties west of Gilliam and expects to be in Condon next week as a "knight of the road." It is probable that Mr. Hunt will make his headquarters in Pendleton instead of Portland. As soon as convenient he will remove his family from Tennessee to Pendleton where he will be able to spend a day of each week at home.
