DISTINGUISHED VISITORS COME TO THE "WHEAT CITY"

Agricultural Experts Investigate

FOR EXPERIMENTAL STATION

Party Drove to Matney Flat and Examined Ranches in that Locality— Meet Local Committee.

Members of the faculty of the State Agricultural College assisted by experts from the Department of Agriculture were in Condon Wednesday for the purpose of investigating the soil conditions of Gilliam county with the aim of establishing an experiment station. The party consisted of: President W. J. Kerr, Professor H. D. Scudder, W. A. Jensen, all of the Agricultural College at Corvallis, William Jardine, expert in dry farming, and A. P. Stover, irrigation expert, both of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The work of the experts will not only include a thorough chemical analysis of soils to determine what crops may be grown most successfully but will extend to a study of water sheds and dry farming conditions.

On their arrival to the Wheat City, the experts met a number of prominent citizens who are interested in the growing of cereals and who have kept well informed on crop conditions and yields for a number of years. This data was of special interest to the visitors.

Drove to Matney— Conference.

The distinguished visitors then drove to Matney Flat, investigated soil conditions and examined several farms in that section. On their return to Condon the agriculturalists held a conference at the Oregon hotel with a number of local citizens among whom were D. B. Thomas, manager of the Condon branch of the Kerr, Gifford & Co., Hon. W. J. Mariner of Blalock, S. C. Dodson, who owns one of the finest ranches in the Clem neighborhood and W. A. Campbell, the Ferry Canyon wheat grower. The experts talked of their plans at length and ascertained the opinion of the committee regarding the project.

In the installation of an experimental farm, it is necessary to obtain a tract of at least 320 acres but 640 would be preferable so that the experiments may be conducted on such a scale as to give practical results. This farm which is to be conducted jointly under state and government experts must be an average farm—it must possess average soil qualities; a poor tract of land or an unusually good piece of land will not meet the requirements.

To Be Located—Where?

One thing at least appears certain, namely that one experimental farm will have to do for several counties. In that event it is probable that but one experimental station for Wheeler, Sherman and Gilliam counties since these counties are identified together in various ways, will be established.

Conditions in the adjoining counties are similar to those of Gilliam. The composition of the soil, and the yield per acre are almost identical or sufficiently so that agricultural experiments conducted in one county would prove valuable to the others.

"Where will the station be located?" That is the question. The location of the "farm" may be decided by the interest the farmers and ranchers of the surrounding country will show in the enterprise. Condon is the great primary grain shipping point in the country; Gilliam county has progressive farmers; local wheat sets the standard they tell us. If civic pride counts for anything it ought to assist in getting the station in Gilliam county. There are several ranches available for the purpose at reasonable figures. However this point of securing a tract of land was not strongly hinted at, only in a general way. After having made investigations in other counties, the experts will make a report and the locating of the experimental stations will then be determined.

ON TO MAYVILLE FAIR!

Farmers Preparing to Gather Exhibits For Fair.

Premium List is Ready for Distribution -- Pamphlets Neat and Attractive

With less than a month before the opening of the Mayville Grange fair, it becomes a matter of importance that farmers and ranchers interested in the fair should begin at once the selection of their best products for exhibition. At every agricultural exposition there is a species of the genus homo that goes in and out of the exhibit booths, repeating some such expression: "Pshaw I've got better stuff than that at home." Such remarks should not be heard at an agricultural fair for the best products of the region should be on exhibition, not with the mere idea of capturing a prize but rather to demonstrate the fecundity of the soil and to show the easy-going farmer what may be accomplished in the growing of fine products from a farm, the soil of which is not better adapted to the growth of cereals, fruits, or vegetables than his own. To many who attended the Mayville fair a year ago the exhibits in certain classes were a revelation. The fair this year promises to be more interesting. A number of families are planning to camp on the grounds and the lack of accommodations to entertain the visitors which was manifest last year will be remedied to a great extent. The people of Mayville did not expect so large an attendance and when the visitors came the accommodations were taxed to their full capacity.

Farmers, "Save your best for the fair and plan to be there."

Stockmen who contemplate entering stock at the fair should begin to fit up their horses, mules and cattle for the show ring.

Right Rev. Paddock Holds Services.

CHURCH UNITY IS THEME

Episcopalians Rejoice over his Coming— Congregational Pastor tapers Use of Church to Visitor.

Church unity received new impetus in Condon when Rev. T. F. Murphy, of the Congregational church, invited Right Rev. Robert L. Paddock, bishop of the Episcopal church for the Eastern Oregon diocese, to occupy his pulpit at both the morning and evening services last Sunday. The invitation was accepted and two large congregations were present to listen to two stirring sermons.

For the past ten years the bishop has been associated with the work among the slums on the East Side district of Greater New York, and his appointment to the Eastern Oregon diocese, where the country is comparatively thinly settled, is an unusual change. However, since coming to Oregon, Bishop Paddock has entered his new work with the same zeal and energy that characterized him in his former field, and he is now engaged in visiting every section of his diocese. A strengthening of the church and a renewing of zeal among Episcopalians who are scattered everywhere throughout Eastern Oregon will naturally follow under the leadership of the magnetic personality of this noted churchman.

The Episcopal devotional service was a rather new custom in a Congregational church, but those present took an active part in it.

Speaking on the subject of church unity, Bishop Paddock said in his evening discourse that he hoped the time was not far distant where in cities less than 1000 people all Protestant Christians would worship together. "We will build the most pretentious building in the town; it will be a building as nice as the court house. It will stand out as the center of the life of the community, and from it shall radiate influences that will make for the city's welfare."

Bishop Paddock has a rare faculty of telling a story and telling it well. Every anecdote told last Sunday was illustrative of some moral point, which was sent home impressively to the hearers.

Rev. Paddock went to Fossil Monday to look after the Episcopal church's interests at that place.

Hotel Changes Management.

The Palace Hotel is under new management, the proprietor U. S. Carnine having leased it for one year to Claud Miller, Roy Miller and Ralph Ashpaugh. Mr. Carnine has been in poor health for some time and will spend a few days at Collins in the near future after which he will visit relatives at Castle Rock, and Silver Lake, Wash. and Portland. On his return to Condon, he expects to go out on a ranch for some time. The new firm is made up of well known and industrious young men who will no doubt enjoy a good patronage.
