"Not a house to rent in the whole town." This is the common remark heard on the streets. It is regretful. It is a serious condition that confronts the Wheat City, one destined to retard to a marked degree the growth of the town. Condon is doing herself injustice by not having comfortable houses to rent. The word is being passed around that there is no use to come to Condon to live for there are no houses available. The situation will prove a rather costly method of advertising the home town. Local capitalists owe something to Condon. The resourceful and fertile soil has produced abundantly, the range has fattened large herds and flocks, the newness of the country and its remoteness from commercial centers has contributed to make business profitable here. Those who have made money because of local conditions and resources should do their share to build up Condon. Houses are needed here.

Mayville is to be in the lime light on October 8 and 9. The granges of Gilliam and Wheeler counties are making extensive arrangements to make the fair a success. A splendid program has been prepared for the occasion and the agricultural and livestock exhibits will command attention. Farmers and ranchers are planning to attend in large numbers.

Oregon will roll up a big majority for Taft and Sherman for Oregonians want a safe and sane administration and a continuation of Rooseveltian policies.

The referee's whistle will soon resound on the athletic fields of the country. Football, the great college game, is ever young and numbers its devotees by the tens of thousands. Condon is to have a football team. Rah! Rah! for the Wheat City!

How About Your Locality?

The Globe wants a live news correspondent in each precinct in the county. Send The Globe the news and sign your name to the items. The name will not be printed, but the management wishes to know the author of the correspondence. Our correspondents at Clem and Ajax have been doing splendid work, and Clem has been placed anew on the map by the publicity it has received in The Globe, the newspaper that gives all the news worth printing. The Globe staff writes the news in a dignified, yet breezy and interesting, style, that appeals to newspaper readers. Let your locality be represented in Gilliam county's live newspaper.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

J. L. Chandler of Clem, was a Condon visitor this week.

Wm. Welch returned Tuesday from a two months' visit in Portland.

Dan Thouvenel went to Portland on Wednesday where he expects to work for some time.

Miss Cora Newton, of Corvallis, was the guest of her friend, Mrs. G. W. Parman for a few days the past week, while on her way to Spokane where she will spend the winter.

If the poor little, bay horse who was down, his fore leg interlaced by the reins and fastened over the neck yoke—if the unfortunate animal had the power of speech he would undoubtedly implore "Andy" Carnegie for a medal for his deliverer.

It came to the lot of the youth on his first arrival in Oregon to free a struggling, choking horse tied at the hitching rack in front of The Globe office. The rescuer was Leslie Harlan who had just arrived from Traer, Iowa, to spend several months in the greatest state in the Union.

It came about in this way. A team was hitched in front of the office, one of the animals became impatient and fretful. It fell and was not able to get back on its feet. The more the beast struggled the more securely fastened it became. Passers-by saw the struggling beast. They called for help. The Iowan responded rushed to the horse and with might and main freed the entangled animal and thereby saved its life. When the owner of the team returned he found his horses partly unharnessed and unhitched from the vehicle, he may have been angry, thinking a joke had been perpetrated on him. He should be grateful that the horse still lives.
