GILLIAM COUNTY News Notes

Items of Interest Gathered by Our Country Correspondents.

Arlington News.

"The Devil" was in town this week. Not Old Nick but the play that bears his name.

The ladies of the M. E. church served a chicken dinner Tuesday which proved socially and financially successful. A number of goose hunters from Condon were at the dinner. Among them were: Frank Golden, Otis Campbell, Holly Taylor, Ben Esser, and others.

Judge Burdett and other local sportsmen were out goose hunting and had good luck. There are many hunters coming here these days to kill the festive goose.

A circus aggregation with Shetland ponies, wagons, etc., passed through here Tuesday apparently headed for Condon.

Judge J. H. Scott, of Salem, held a good roads meeting here Tuesday.

Local farmers are much interested in the cause of better highways.

J. D. Lee, Republican presidential elector, will speak here on Saturday, Oct. 24, and an old fashioned rally will be held.

Clem News.

W. S. Jost made a business trip to Arlington Wednesday.

E. O. Fiske transacted business here the first of the week, in the interest of the Kerr, Gifford Whse Co.

The Misses Maude and Bessie Dodson attended Sunday school here last Sunday.

Miss Pearl Schott of Rock Creek was here Wednesday morning on her way to Arlington, for a visit with her sister Mrs. H. S. Tobey.

A gang of railroad men came in last Tuesday evening to unload the depot that arrived here a week ago. It is only a box car but it beats nothing at all.

Jost & Phillips received S. C. Dodson's stock of merchandise from Condon this week and are now able to fit you out with most anything in the line of dry goods; call and see them.

S. S. Thomas of Mikkalo, passed through here Wednesday.

W. A. West made a trip to Condon Wednesday evening.

New Delinquent Tax Law.

According to a law enacted by the state legislature, property is subject to sale for taxes after being delinquent for six months. An extract from said law reads as follows: "Any day after the expiration of six months, after the taxes charged against real property are delinquent, the tax collector shall have the right, and it shall be his duty, upon demand and payment of the taxes, penalty and interest, to make out and issue a certificate or certificates of delinquency against such property." These certificates may draw interest at the rate of 15 per cent per annum. It is advisable for all real property owners to see that their taxes are paid in full before they become six months delinquent as they may be paid by and a certificate issued to any person who may wish to take them up. This would have the same effect as a lien or judgment against the property.

Chas. Martin came up from Olex Tuesday.

Miss Ida Scott of Portland is the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Jackson.

Mrs. Dan Thouvenel left Wednesday for Portland to join her husband who is working in that city.

Mrs. Wicks returned Wednesday from a visit in Portland.

Geo. Rush, a nurseryman from Portland was in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Neal of Lost Valley were trading with our merchants this week.

W. A. West came up from Clem Wednesday.

The regular preaching services will be held at the Congregational church next Sunday. All are invited to attend.

Box Ball Alley Started.

C. K. Andrews has installed a Box Ball alley in the room formerly occupied by the Republican headquarters. The alley is 30 feet long, the pins are set by machinery and the balls are automatically returned. It is something new in this section and is fast becoming popular. As a good form of light exercise together with good sport it cannot be beaten.

The American Theatre—an excellent and refined moving picture show every evening. Only 10 cents. Theatre on Main St., Condon.

School Notes.

By LESLIE HARLAN.

School was dismissed Monday afternoon in order to allow the pupils a chance to hear the address by Judge Scott on the "Good Roads" question. The address given by Prof. Sturgill went to show the relation between, Good Roads and Education.

Why not have a piano in the High School?

The boys are thinking of organizing a male quartet.

The Senior class have selected "Old Gold and Purple, for their class colors. The other classes should not be long in following this example.

The Laboratory is now nearly ready for use. A delay was necessary to allow a carpenter to improve the fixtures.

A movement is on foot to organize a band with as many High School members as possible. Condon is certainly in need of a band and everybody should help to make this one a success as it is of interest not alone to the players but to the town as well.

Fascination of an Old Bookstore.

"There seems to be a fascination about an old bookstore that some persons find it difficult to overcome," observed the proprietor of one of those establishments. "While we have a large number of good patrons, there are some who delight to come in and just pore over old volumes. I have seen men stand in this store and practically read a book through in an afternoon. They seem to forget their surroundings for the time being, and when they emerge from their abstraction they are apt to observe that they 'have just been looking over the books' and ask for some volume that they are quite sure is out of print. Yes, sir, the old bookstore is a free library in a way, but it is an interesting business and fairly profitable."—Philadelphia Record.

Fake Remnants.

A country storekeeper, a pair of long, bright shears in hand, calmly cut a roll of silk into remnants. "Women," he explained to his city cousin, "are remnant mad. There are women who never buy except at remnant sales. Such women will pass by goods in the piece at a quarter a yard and snap up the same goods in remnant lengths at 30 cents. "So great is the demand for remnants that it is impossible to keep up the legitimate supply." "The country storekeeper winked. "Hence," he said, "my present occupation."—Los Angeles Times.

Silenced.

"Wasn't that young Mr. Tiff who left the house as I came in?" asked the judge of his eldest daughter. "Yes, papa." "Did I not issue an injunction against his coming here any more?" "Yes, papa, but he appealed to a higher court, and mamma reversed your decision."

Run Down.

Tom—Of course the bride looks lovely, as brides always do. Nell—Yes, but the bridegroom doesn't look altogether fit; seems rather run down. Tom—Run down? Oh, yes, caught after a long chase!—Philadelphia Press.

Woes of the Amateur.

Wife—I wonder why the gram doesn't come up? Hubby—I'm sure I can't tell. You don't suppose you planted the seeds upside down, do you?—London Tit-Bits.

Pride went out on horseback and returned on foot.—Italian Proverb.

OUR EARLY STATESMEN.

Monroe's Expansion Views and Madison's Population-Guess.

Some of our early statesmen were not expansionists. Washington was opposed to assuming the ownership of the Mississippi river, and James Monroe when a member of the Virginia convention in 1788 argued against the adoption of the federal constitution for geographical reasons. "Consider," he said, "the territory lying between the Atlantic ocean and the Mississippi. Its extent far exceeds that of the German empire. It is larger than any territory that ever was under any one free government. It is too extensive to be governed but by a despotic monarchy." And this from the man who thirty years later was elected president of the United States extended far beyond the Mississippi and who became the author of the "Monroe doctrine."

A year after the adoption of the constitution James Madison thought he was making a bold guess when he estimated that the population of the country might, "in some years," double in number and reach 6,000,000. He lived to see far beyond that. Yet it is true that for a number of years the population was largely confined to the original thirteen colonies. In 1789, when the constitution was adopted, New York city had 33,000 inhabitants. In 1817 it had 115,000, Philadelphia 112,000, Baltimore 85,000, Boston 40,000, Providence 10,000, Hartford 8,000, Pittsburg 7,000, Cincinnati 7,000 and St. Louis 3,500. Chicago was but a fort, and Indianapolis was an unbroken wilderness. The country was not crowded yet.—Exchange.

CONSOLATION.

The Musician Reminded the Poet of the Case of Guarnerius.

The musician with a compassionate smile watched the poet trimming the fringe from his cuff.

"After all," he said, "your verse may live when Marie Corelli, Winston Churchill and Hall Caine himself are forgotten. Remember the case of Guarnerius."

"Who was he?" the poet asked.

"A pauper and a violin maker. Guarnerius in the seventeenth century made violins that everybody thought too thick; hence they brought only $2 apiece. Musicians would buy them and have them pared down.

"Guarnerius insisted that they were not too thick. When he heard of one of his instruments being pared down he flew into a frightful rage. He had a grudge against the world because it wouldn't agree with him about violin making. He died a pauper because the world would have none of his violins.

"A Guarnerius is now and then to be picked up. Usually it is a pared instrument, and its value is not very high. But find an unpared Guarnerius and you can get anything you like for it. It is one of the world's few perfect violins.

"But Guarnerius died a pauper. The Hall Caines and Winston Churchills of the violin world of his day refused with sneers to drink with him. He, too, trimmed his cuffs."—Los Angeles Times.

Hay on Church Floor.

A curious custom is annually observed at Old Neston church on St. Swithin's day. The church is dedicated to St. Swithin, and on festival day the church is strewn with hay. Many years ago some donor left a field to provide money for bread which is distributed four times a year. The tenant of the field has to supply the hay to strew the church. The custom is supposed to have originated from the fact that on festival Sunday the parishioners wear new boots, and the idea of the donor was to have the hay laid down to stop the squeaking incidental to new footwear.—London Standard.
