E--"The Grange Fair City"

MAYVILLE, located as it is in the center of perhaps the richest and most productive farming section of the county, is the natural home of the Grange Fair. The farmers of that vicinity are united by their grange organization and have been forging ahead. With the aid of the other grangers of this county and those of Wheeler county, they have during the past two years, held most successful fairs. These annual displays of the agricultural products, live stock and household industries, have done much to promote the interest in all these lines in this county.

C. J. Quinn, president, and G. B. Dukek, secretary and treasurer, of the Gilliam and Wheeler Counties Grange Fair deserve much credit for the success of this new enterprise. They are hard workers, prosperous farmers who have made Gilliam Co. their home for years and their one aim is to "boost" this county and its resources in a way that will convince all—and such was the direct result of their labors during the last Mayville Fair.

The above cut shows a number of visitors at the Fair looking over the merits of the Holt Combined Harvester.
