

A COMMUNICATION

The people of Condon were given a dose of medicine on Friday night at the hands of the city council which will not soon be forgotten. At this time there was up for its consideration the appointment of a councilman to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Wood who was elected mayor of the city.

Henry Thiessen, a man who is absolutely fair and fearless, was recommended for the place by a petition setting forth that he had received the next highest vote at the city election held in Condon April 11th, and was signed by a majority of the voters of the City of Condon. At any general election the petitioners would have elected him; to those whom it was left to appoint a man who the people desired, it was referred; and the citizens who signed that petition, under our theory of government, had the right to expect that their will should govern, or at least receive such consideration as would show a respect for their wishes. When the time came to pass on the appointment of a councilman, Councilman Hire nominated Henry Thiessen and this was seconded by Councilman Butler, but when the ballots were counted the votes showed that two councilmen had voted for Thiessen and three for John Jackson. In doing so they ignored the will of the people as expressed in the petition and in effect said: "The people be damned, who is running this city?"

As an official Mr. Jackson might and undoubtedly will serve the city well, but this has nothing whatever to do with the question now under discussion, only so far as it shows how far out of the way some of the councilmen went in order to ignore the petitioners' recommendation. If these things can be done in a country which boasts of free American institutions; where every man's vote counts one, and is as good as another; where the will of the people cannot ordinarily be thwarted and disregarded as has been done here, our city is a joke, its people are regarded as nonentities, and our government turned into a farce. Time was when such things could be done, but they were in countries ruled by kings and their power was eventually crushed. They tried it in France and the French Revolution followed. They tried it in England and the English Revolution followed, and all the human life that was sacrificed for the people's will was tremendous. While those days have passed by, and I hope never to return, nevertheless the American people, I hope, cannot be driven regardless of whether or not it be done by a despot or any other power, for it is a well known fact that in other communities the people have turned and created reforms thereafter which were a credit to free government and in accordance with the principles on which our constitution was made.

The time will come in Condon when the people will demand a government in accordance with their wishes, and when they do the reforms that they will create will be a credit to our city and Eastern Oregon.
