Forty-two million bushels of wheat is the estimated crop of Oregon, Washington and Idaho according to an authority who has completed a trip through the grain sections. He finds that Oregon will produce 15,000,000 bushels, Washington 18,000,000 bushels and Idaho 9,000,000 bu. Unfavorable weather conditions during the past winter in some sections caused a falling off over the total yield of last year which was 52,500,000 bushels for the three states.

Oregon's apple show will be in Portland November 30 to Dec. 2. It will be a great exposition of the state's fruit-growing possibilities and it will be of wide interest because of Oregon's fame as the home of the red apple. There promises to be exhibits entered in competition for prizes from every apple grower county in the state. The Corvallis Commercial Club has already offered $100 for the best apple exhibits from Benton County and the Hood River Commercial Club has offered $50 for prizes for the best apples shown from that section. Other counties will yet be heard from in the same way.

Man has been attending horse races for thousands of years and will probably continue to do so centuries after the automobile shall have been succeeded by some other wonderful invention. The horseless age will never appear if its coming is dependent on the automobile or any other inanimate invention supplanting the horse in the affections of the people. The beauty of his limbs his arched neck and quivering nostrils, his haughty movements, all appeal to the eye today even as they did thousands of years ago. Men with sufficient funds to gratify their pleasures will continue to pay fabulous prices for horses until the end of time.

If some day the newspaper man should print the contents of his waste basket there would probably be a riot. There would certainly be trouble in many homes, arrests in some direction, shot guns in others, trouble all around. But the patron never sees the waste basket. He only glances at the beautifully printed pages, complains if one letter in fifty is upside down, growls his disappointment if one name in five hundred has happened to go wrong, kicks because his communication, signed "Tax Payer," has been condensed into respectable English, frowns because the editor didn't take his advice about publicly warning his neighbor about rubbish in his alley, and is generally disgruntled, not so much at what he fails to find. He knows his share of the waste basket, but if he could have one look at the contributions made to that receptacle by his neighbors and friends, he would thank the editor for having sufficient intelligence and courage not to print all he knows, and to temper even that which he does print.

The marvels of irrigation, which have already reclaimed millions of acres in the Pacific Northwest and helped make the group of Northwestern states famous for their wealth of fruit products all over the world, are still in their infancy. No sooner is one project completed than the government reclamation service is at work on another, while private enterprise has planned many extensive schemes. Irrigation ditches are being built today with all of the care and precision, and nearly if not quite as great expense, as is expended in building railroads.

The first all steel train that ever moved over a roadbed in the Northwest pulled out of Seattle on July 20 over the Oregon and Washington line for Portland. The steel train marked an epoch in Northwest railroading, being made up of the most modern equipment used anywhere in the world. The day when old half worn out coaches from eastern lines can be sent west for use in their old age has passed. The railroads are now providing the most luxurious service they can provide and the trains operating on all lines in the Northwest compare favorably with those between Chicago and St. Louis, or any other eastern points. The steel coaches will not splinter, telescope or burn in case of accident, and are easily the finest railroad equipment ever seen in the Northwest.

There seems to be some doubt whether Jack Johnson was born in Texas or South Carolina. We do not anticipate however, that this will lead to Civil War between South Carolina and Texas.

Dr. Wiley, the Government Chemist, says that there is nothing especially dangerous about kissing. Some of the summer girls will forgive the good doctor now for the mean things he has said about ice cream soda.

It is said 15,000,000 words were spoken during the recent session of Congress. Congress was almost as great a word mill as Reno, Nevada.
