At last a railroad president has come to the fore and made a statement which seems to indicate that the railroad magnates fear that the next step by the people will be government ownership of railways. President Ripley of the Santa Fe Railroad makes the startling statement that such is liable to be the result.

Whether or not this would be a solution of the problem of selfishness on the part of the railroads we will not and cannot say. One thing is certain and that is that the railroads, while owning the road beds and rolling stock, are being curbed. Several prominent writers have contended for some years that the only solution to the problem before the people in the regulation of railroads is through government ownership of the roadbeds, and the corporations own the rolling stock. Under this arrangement any person, firm or corporation could use the roadbed like any public highway. It is contended that under such a system the railway monopoly would be an impossibility. Competition growing up under such a system would be akin to the high seas where any firm or persons, that have enough money to purchase a good freight vessel can ply the waters in competition with owners for any and all points touched by a modern vessel.

Belgium owned her own railway systems and operated them, but in 1842 or 43 concessions were granted for private road building, and the original plan was tossed away, and many acknowledged that it would be a disaster to the government. But foresight by the government for private roads limited its charters to 99 years and at the expiration of the term the government became the owner of them without payment, that is, the road bed became the property of the government.

The French roads, we understand, are built the same way. One very essential clause, reserved at all times is, that the government can purchase at any time. Switzerland, we understand, is now the owner of most of her railroads.

With a modern and powerful interstate commerce commission such as we now have, coupled with the powers granted to the various state railway commissions, the people are coming into their own. The tide is turning. The greedy railway kings, of the east have forced the people to pass the drastic laws in order to protect the interest of the masses.

As I am going to move away I will sell my automobile for $300, and all the extras goes with it. Three changes of sprockets which change the speed from 10 to 35 miles per hour. This is a rare bargain.
