PRESIDENT WILSON will probably find that there is some difference between the governorship of New Jersey and the presidency of the nation.

CRITICISM MIGHT BE UNJUST

in a small state where he was well acquainted with the characteristics of every man of any prominence than it will be to distinguish between the desirable and the undesirable in a population of over one hundred millions, more than ninety-five millions of whom are absolutely unknown to him.

No one will question the integrity of character of President Wilson but under such conditions mistakes may be made and this one of the perplexing embarrassments under which the President constantly has to labor forces us to judge his actions with constant leniency.

ONE of the most effective manners of building up a community is to extend the hand of good fellowship to the stranger within the gates.

BE HOSPITABLE TO STRANGERS

stage in its career when it can afford to slight the stranger. Good business policy demands that he be treated with due courtesy, says the Albany Democrat.

This is good advice which every town in this growing state can follow out with commendable pride.

The merchant, who knows, realizes the value of his show window displays. But is he aware that the Globe is a show window on a main street in full view of a crowd varying from 3000 to 3500 persons? Think it over.

We have seen young men and women who seemed mostly taken up with the desire to attract attention. They always succeed but never attract respect. It is the quiet unobtrusive one's who get people's respect.
