NOMAD IS RICH FOR SHORT TIME ONLY

Last week in Arlington a hobo and a sheepherder imbibed a little too freely and arriving at the confidential stage, went down to the river bank to ruminate on the general cussedness of the world. While there the sheepherder again became thirsty and, giving the hobo his coat, told him to go up town and get another bottle of whiskey. In the coat was $165, all of the sheepherder's money, and the hobo, knowing this, thought it a good time to make his getaway. He stole a boat, started across the river and landed on an island. Thinking that it was the Washington shore, he pushed the boat back into the river, curled up under a sagebrush and went to sleep. When he awakened in the morning and found he was on an island his thoughts might be imagined but his expressions might better be left unsaid. At any rate he had plenty of good cold water. The sheepherder discovered the hobo across on the island, got another boat and went after him. When they got back to Arlington the sheepherder bought the hobo a ticket in one direction on the O. W. R. & N. and one for himself in the opposite direction.

Mr. Rogers will have two miles of this fence in all and operate the same as Mr. Maley with the exception that his hog pasture will be of wheat instead of rye. He also will keep about 200 hogs.

GOOD INVESTMENT FOR LOCAL SCHOOL

Can Get Pig From Portland Stock Yards by Keeping Record.

Every city and country school in Oregon and Washington that wants a pig can have one with the compliments of the Portland Union Stock Yards. The only condition attaching to the gift pigs will be a requirement that each school accepting one keep an accurate record of the kind, quantity and cost of the food that is given it. This will be for the purpose of determining the cost of feeding and preparing a pig for market. It is expected that the pigs will be sold when they reach a marketable size. The stock yards will buy them back at the market price and the schools can use the money as they choose. Stockyards officials expect the boys and girls of the various schools to compete for the distinction of making the most money out of their pork stock.
