of making the plans for the entertainment of this countryman of yours. The general and I will be too busy getting to meet them on their own grounds to give any time to that. Remember, they will have to be shown the best grazing land in the valley in motorcurs. When they are done sixing us up we'll be ready for them. The count and his recretaries will, of course, be entertained at the Mansion, and you can make arrangements at the hotel for the rest of the suite. Also will you please instruct my servants how to make them comfortable, and, Robert, will you confer with Mrs. Whitworth, who, as the wife of the treasurer of the state of Harpeth, while neither the general nor I has a wife. must be considered as the official social representative of the state as to what form the official entertainments must take?"

And as he asked that question of me my Gouverneur Faulkner did not so much as glance at my uncle, the General Robert, who gave an exciamation of contempt in his throat as he began a reading of the two papers which I had handed to him.

"Also I suppose this means I must give up all hope of services from that fly-up-the-creek Clendenning," be grum bled as he read.

"I will do as you bid me, my Gouverneur Faulkner, in all things, and I will be much helped by both my excellent Buzz and the beautiful Madam Whitworth," I made answer to the question and command given to me by the Couverneur Faulkner, and as I mentioned the parse of that lady I lowered my eyes to the floor and waited for my dismissal. I did not want to look into his eyes, for I did not know even then if I might not find that Madam Whitworth there. I only knew that, whatever she did or was to him, his honor was inviolable.

"Well, get to it all," commanded my uncle, the General Robert. "Get vouchers for what you spend and pay with state department checks. Don't blow in a fortune, you young spendthrift, you, but also remember that the state of Harpeth is one of the richest

in America and knows how to show

"That state of Marpeth has shown that hospitality to one humble youth of France, my Uncle Robert, who has a great gratitude," I made answer to him as I laid my cheek upon the sleeve of his coat, which was of a cut in the best style for gentlemen of his sge. Try as hard as Robert Carrothers will, cannot force that Roberta, marquise of Grez and Bye, at all times to refrain from a caress to the uncle whom she so greatly loves.

"Clear out, sir! Depart?" was the response I got to that caress. But always that wicked Roberts, marquise of Grez and Bye, finds in the face of her relative something that assures ber that she can so venture at a later time.

And as I turned away from that coldness on the part of my august relative I found a glow of warmth for my reviving in the eyes of my beautiful Gouverneur Faulkner, who held out mis hand to me as I started to the door for that departure commanded me.

"Blood brothers never doubt each other, Robert," he said to me as with one hand be grasped my right hand and laid the other on my arm above my bandage over the wound Timms had given to me, which was now almost entirely healed.

With the quickness of lightning I laid my cheek against the sleeve of his coat in exactly the caress I had given to my uncle, the General Robert, and then did depart with an equal rapidity. "Can you beat bim, Bill?" I heard my uncle, the General Robert, demand as I closed the door. "Impossible!" was the answer ! thought was returned.

And from that audience chamber I went quickly and alone in my good cherry to Twin Oaks, was admitted
