When they return they will make their home for a time with Mr. and Mrs. Farr. Mr. Morgan will continue farming. COUNTY AGENT IS LINING UP WORK AND ORGANIZING COUNTY COUNCIL

County Divided into Twelve Districts; To Have Series of Meetings Soon; Says Farmers Want the Fair

Gilliam county's agricultural agent is on the job. J. C. Hawkins received the appointment last week and has already started the work of organizing the county to get the best results. He is quite well known in Gilliam, having conducted several demonstrations at various times in treating seed grain for smut. He was formerly a grain expert with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and his experience in this line will be valuable. He has divided the county into twelve districts and will hold a meeting in each district to organize it. These meetings will start April 15. Then on May 4 a big meeting will be held in Condon, with representatives of each district present, to organize a council for the county and to decide on the projects the farmers want taken up first. Mr. Hawkins says that the farmers he has talked with want a county fair and will furnish exhibits.

Some Story; Valley Paper Has Tale Which Is Pure Pipe-dream

A well-authenticated story comes from near Arlington, Oregon, which runs as follows: A stranger passing through the county stopped about noon at a large ranch and asked if he could have dinner. The housewife replied that she was preparing dinner and if he would wait he could share the meal. The man took a seat on the front porch. The lady left the house momentarily on an errand connected with her meal when the man quietly slipped inside and taking a bottle containing a red liquid, poured it into a pot of beans cooking on the stove. He thought he was unobserved, but a sick child lay in an adjoining room, and saw the act of the stranger. When the mother came in the child revealed to her what he had seen, and when the husband and farm hands reported for dinner the secret was made known to them also. At first it was thought to have the stranger arrested, but they decided to handle the matter in a different way. Nothing was said openly and they sat down to dinner. The beans were first passed to the stranger, who declined to partake, saying that he never ate beans. One of the men then produced from under the table a pistol and pointing it at the stranger said: "This is the time when you eat beans." The man was reluctant to partake but did so. In fifteen minutes he was taken sick and in an hour he was dead. The men went to the county seat and told the officers of the law what had happened. The reply was that they were to go back to their work and the proper authorities would take care of the body. These facts were conveyed by a neighbor of the family to a relative in this city and the truth of the story is undoubted for this reason. The evident purpose of the man was to kill several persons at one stroke and hinder the production of the crop on a large farm. In the absence of any other known motive, that is the conclusion of the people of the neighborhood.—McMinnville Telephone Register, February 22.

This story was recently published in the McMinnville Telephone-Register. The Globe man was asked to investigate, and so found that it was a mere fabrication without fact or foundation.

Elder M. H. Cook will speak in the Saints Church in Condon Saturday, March 23, at 8 P. M. and Sunday, the 24th, at 11 and 8 o'clock.
