PICK THE MAN WHO CAN GIVE SERVICE

With another primary election less than a month away it is reasonable to say that this is no time to play petty politics. With our country in war and looked to by our allies to play the principal part in the future, it is anything but American to let picayunish prejudices sway our judgment in selecting officers who will give the best service to the people and to our government. This is true of all state, district and county offices. When you cast your vote, do it with the feeling that you are serving your country.

BRUCE HULL, CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY CLERK

Bruce Hull is a candidate for the republican nomination for county clerk. He is the logical man for the place. His qualifications are of the best. He came to this county when he was 12 years old and he has made his home here ever since, living in north Gilliam near Blalock until he finished the graded school there. He then came to Condon and worked his way through the local high school. After graduating here he went to the University of Pennsylvania and worked his way there for a year. He came back to Gilliam county and started teaching school and has been at the head of the Mayville schools for three years and, although the taxpayers of that district want him to head their school again, they all feel that he can do good work for the whole county in the clerk's office. Added to his clerical qualifications is the outstanding fact that he is a red-blooded American and the people can rest assured that with Bruce Hull in the clerk's office the war department will get the same complete and capable co operation that it has received in the past from Clerk Laughrigh and the taxpayers will receive the same careful, courteous and accurate administration of their business.

"THE SHERIFF HAS A SPLENDID RECORD"

In this issue J. W. Lillie, sheriff of this county, announces that he will be a candidate for reelection to that office and asks for the democratic nomination at the primary election. A couple of months ago it appeared that there would be a lively scrap for this office as at that time there were two or three men on the point of announcing their candidacy. Later, however, when it was understood that the war department of our government asked that all present sheriffs be retained in office on account of their familiarity with the operations of the selective service draft for the army, these men gave evidence of their loyalty and willingness to co operate with the government by dropping out in favor of Mr. Lillie. In addition to the fact that the government wants Mr. Lillie in the sheriff's office, he has been a capable official and given good service to the taxpayers. The county auditor in his last report said: "The sheriff has a splendid record."

MICKIE'S COLYUM

DIDJA EVER STOP TO THINK THAT, NEXT TO THE KAISER'S GOAT, YER SOLDIER BOY'D RATHER HAVE A COPY OF THE OLD HOME PAPER REGULAR THAN ANYTHIN' ELSE IN THE WORLD?

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE BOSS

Said interview being the one I promised last week and if I hadn't given my word to get it I'd have passed it up for it took some nerve, believe me.

"Better wait until some other time," warned the guardian angel of our mechanical department as I took my pad and started for the front office. "he's busy and got a grouch this morning." This just about shattered the little nerve I had left but I had said I would get it for this week and it was time to fill my colyum, so I decided to take a chance as Columbus did and the first man who ate an oyster.

"Say, boss!" I yelled in an effort to make myself heard above the clatter of that old Royal he paws around on. "Not another cent until Saturday night, Mickie," he answered me wheeling around in his chair and giving me a look that no one could have misunderstood. This wilted me completely and I forgot every one of those rules he had given me to learn.

"But I told the folks last week that I was going to write you up, boss, and I'll have to ask some questions. Would you tell me where you were born?"

He smiled faintly and with eyes closed began: "The shadows were creeping, the gossips were sleeping, the birds to the courthouse flew—"

"Hold on," I said, "I don't want any spring poetry now, I want real facts. How big was the town?"

"Two weeklies and a job shop," he answered.

"And you learned the printer's trade by—"

"I learned the printer's trade when I was too young to know better," he volunteered, and continued: "I have held positions, situations and jobs of all sizes and shapes from working on the section to advance man for a one-ring circus and ballyhoo for the side entrance where Fatima gets big dollars from the baldheaded guys. I am married. I do not use snuff. I have no corns or bunions. I despise oysters but am fond of cheese. I smoke Muriel cigars when times are good and John Ruskens when they are bad. I am smoking a Muriel now. I wear Porus-Knit under—"

It was necessary to interrupt again. "That'll be fine along that line," I said, "but what is your favorite amusement?"

"Advertising."

"Your favorite literature?"

"Advertising."

"And your favorite recreation is—?"

"Advertising."

HELLO, SPRING!

AND YOU, TOO, READER!

Welcome to our parlors again, where ice cream and soft drinks are always to your liking! Every flavor and the best that can be made.

Price? Well, that is the small part of it.

Tell your friends to meet you here, the popular spot in town. You see most everybody here, anyway.

Then, too, you can always get the best of candies, fruits and mixed nuts.

JOHN JACKSON

Condon's Leading Stationer and Confectioner

As he spoke the last word I noticed him glance insinuatingly at his typewriter, at the door and at me.

"Sure," I said, "but just one thing more—do you drink?"

There was a flicker of interest in his eyes. "Stick around after we lock up, Mickie, and I'll see you. Tell Joe Hawkins we're ready for the rest of his stuff and have Skinny Austin get those plates down from the depot and you get the basement floor swept and those presses cleaned up."

As I beat it for the cooler atmosphere of the shop, our angel said, "How'd you make it?"

"Flow," I lied.

A press agent refers to the voice of the noted singer, Gallucurci, as "bottled moonshine." We don't know what Gallu's prices are but in this arid section that commodity retails at around $10 a quart.

It might be hinted to those patriots who are so patriotically holding on to their earthly possessions, that Liberty Bonds are much more attractive than a direct tax.

Does that bill, giving the President power to requisition the timber of the country, have any reference to the fences of the politicians?

You may have set the clock ahead but did you think to notify the roosters to get on the job an hour earlier?

Folks say that matches are made in heaven. I think some of them are used to start the fires in hell.

We can all get jobs working for the upbuilding of this community and the pay is certain.

There is only one road to heaven and no church has the exclusive right of transportation.

The man who bought Liberty Bonds has an investment as sound as the Rock of Ages.

A well trained conscience will stretch as long as the fun lasts

Some talkers make their best point when they stop.

Keep the home garden growing

So long—
