Job Too Big for Average Man.

It takes lots of brains, patience and attractiveness to keep everybody straight. The trouble is it's not so much a matter of benefit to others as it is a satisfaction to yourself to be the general manager of things. The world could lose several in every community and its efficiency and peace would not suffer in the least The chap that would be general maniger of any group of people must not only be a man of big mentality but it has to be recognized to bring harmonious results.

Birds Remember Kindness.

Birds are naturally very friendly to man. They make friends easily, and unless violence is threatened them hey never forget a kindness or favor Once food is placed on a window sill 'n the winter, when food for birds is hard to get, they return time and again, even though the individual forgets to place morsels within their reach.

First Colonial General Hospital.

It was on February 7, 1751, that the first general hospital was chartered in the colonies-the Pennsylvania state hospital in Philadelphia. Joshua Cros by was the first president of the institution, and Benjamin Franklin, whe had been prominent in urging the es tablishment of an institution for the care of the sick, was the first clerk. It was in this hospital in 1769 that Thom as Bond gave the first clinical instruction in America.

once again the cook appeared in the door of the billet with : "Blime me, you Yanks are lazy. Who in -a-goin' to draw the water for the mornin' tea? Do you think I'm a-goin' to? Well, I'm not," and he left. I filled the dixie with water from an old squeaking well, and once again lay down in the straw.

CHAPTER VII.

Rations.

Just dozing off ; Mr. Lance Corporal butted in. In Tommy's eyes a lance corporal is one degree below a private. In the corporal's eyes he is one degree above a general

He ordered me to go with him and help him draw the next day's rations, also told me to take my waterproof.

Every evening, from each platoon or machine-gun section, a lance corporal and private go to the quartermaster sergeant at the company stores and draw rations for the following day.

The "quarter," as the quartermaster sergeant is called, receives daily from the orderly room (captain's office) a slip showing the number of men entitled to rations, so there is no chance of putting anything over on him. Many arguments take place between the "quarter" and the platoon noncom, but the former always wins out. Tommy says the "quarter" got his job because he was a burglar in civil life.

Then I spread the waterproof sheet on the ground, while the quartermaster's batman dumped the rations on it. The corporal was smoking a fag. I carried the rations back to the billet. The corporal was still smoking a fag. How I envied him. But when the issue commenced my envy died, and I realized that the first requisite of a noncommissioned officer on active service is diplomacy. There were 19 men in our section, and they soon formed semicircle around us after the corporal bad called out, "Rations up."

The quartermaster sergeant had given a slip to the corporal on which was written a list of the rations. Sitting on the floor, using a wooden box as a table, the issue commenced. On the left of the corporal the rations were piled. They consisted of the following:

Six loaves of fresh bread, each loaf of a different size, perhaps one out of the six being as flat as a pancake, the result of an army service corps man placing a box of buily beef on it during transportation.

"Bermuda onlons, seventeen." The corporal avoided a row by say ing that he did not want an onion, and I said they make your breath smell, so I guessed I would do without one too. The corporal looked his gratitude. 'Cheese, pounds, two.' The corporal borrowed a jackknife (corporals are always borrowing), and sliced the cheese-each slicing bringing forth a pert remark from the onokers as to the corporal's cycsight. "Raisins, ounces, eight."

By this time the corporal's nerve had gone west, and in despair he said that the raisins were to be turned over to the cook for "duff" (plum pudding). This decision elicited a little "grousing," but quiet was finally restored. "Biscuits, tins, one."

With his borrowed jackknife, the corporal opened the tin of biscuits, and told everyone to help themselves-nobody responded to this invitation. Tommy is "fed up" with biscuits,

"Butter, tins, two," "Nine in one, ten in the other."

Another rumpus.

'Pickles, mustard, bottles, one." Nineteen names were put in a steel beimet, the last one out winning the pickles. On the next issue there were only 18 names, as the winner is eliminated until every man in the section has won a bottle.

The raffie is closely watched, because Tommy is suspicious when it comes to gambling with his rations.

When the issue is finished the corporal sits down and writes a letter home, asking them if they cannot get some M. P. (member of parliament) to have him transferred to the Royal Fiying corps where he won't have to issue rations

At the different French estaminets in the village and at the canteens Tommy buys fresh eggs, milk, brend and pastry. Occasionally when he is flush, he invests in a tin of pears or apricots. His pay is only a shilling a day, 24 cents, or a cent an hour. Just imagine, a cent an hour for being under fire-not much chance of getting rich out there.

When he goes into the fire trench (front line), Tommy's menu takes a tumble. He carries in his haversack what the government calls emergency right of use of water right may be or iron rations. They are not supposed to be opened until Tommy dies of starvation. They consist of one tin of bully beef, four biscults, a little tin which contains ten, sugar and Oxo cubes (concentrated beef tablets). These are only to be used when the enemy establishes a curtain of shell fire on the communication trenches. thus preventing the "carrying in" of rations, or when in an attack a body of troops has been cut off from its base of supplies.

The rations are brought up at night by the company transport. This is a section of the company in charge of the quartermaster sergeant, composed of men, mules and limbers (twowheeled wagons), which supplies Tommy's wants while in the front line. They are constantly under shell fire. The rations are unloaded at the en trance to the communication trenches and are "carried in" by men detailed Reating Back of the Lines.

Three tins of jam, one apple and the other two plum. Seventeen Bermuda onlons, all different sizes.

A piece of cheese in the shape of a wedge. Two one-pound tins of butter.

A handful of raisins. A tin of biscults, or as Tommy calls them "jaw breakers."

A bottle of mustard pickles. The "bully beef," spuds, condensed milk, fresh meat, bacon and "Maconochie rations" (a can filled with meat, vegetables and greasy water), had been turned over to the company cook to make a stew for next day's dinner. He also received the tea, sugar, salt, pepper and flour.

Scratching his head, the corporal studied the slip issued to him by the quarter. Then in a slow, mystified voice he read out, "No. 1 section, 19 men. Bread, loaves, six." He looked puzzled and soliloquized in a musing volce:

"Six loaves, nineteen men. Let's see, that's three in a loaf for fifteen menwell, to make it even, four of you'll have to muck in on one loaf."

The four that got stuck made a howl, but to no avail. The bread was dished out. Pretty soon from a far corner of the billet, three indignant Tommies accosted the corporal with:

"What do you call this, a loaf of bread? Looks more like a sniping plate."

The corporal answered: "Well, don't blame me, I didn't bake it; somebody's got to get it, so shut up until I dish out these blinkin' rations."

Then the corporal started on the jam.

"Jam, three tins-apple one, plum two. Nineteen men, three tins. Six in a tin makes twelve men for two tins, seven in the remaining tin."

He passed around the jam, and there was another riot. Some didn't like apple, while others who received plum were partial to apple. After a while differences were adjusted and the issue went on.
