KEEP THE BOYS AND GIRLS ON THE FARM

It is the same cry wherever we go, "We cannot get any help." The boys leave just as soon as they can, to work elsewhere.

Let us consider the proposition for a few minutes. What have we ever done to make the farm life interesting for the boy so he will want to remain there? I firmly believe that there are very few of us who can say that we have given the boy a chance to do something for himself.

The boy is given a pig by his father. He is allowed to feed the pig and care for it until butchering time comes. The pig is slaughtered and Father takes the money. How would a proposition like this work? Allow the boy to buy the pig from his father and buy the feeding materials. When the pig is slaughtered or sold allow the boy to pay whatever he owes and keep what profits there may be. Would not the boy become interested?

Let the same condition exist in any other project. The boy will be interested. He will do more for himself and more for you. Show the boy a chance to do business for himself, to be a man, and he will do his part. Every boy is human after all; he likes to do business for himself—likes to be recognized.

In some of the middle western states, the Boys' and Girls' Club Work has become a very large factor. The boys and girls are both interested and believe in the farm. In many instances they are taking active part in exhibiting livestock and farm produce at county, state and national fairs and expositions. They are in business for themselves. At the same time they are doing work of inestimable value to their parents.

To bring the discussion home to our own conditions, I could tell of several successes where the boys and girls have been allowed to carry on business propositions for themselves. It teaches the boys and girls business methods early in life, it gives them a confidence in themselves.

President Wilson in a recent letter advocating home gardening wrote:

"Every boy and girl who really sees what the home garden may mean will, I am sure, enter into the purpose with high spirit because I am sure they would all like to feel that they are in fact fighting in France by joining the home garden army.

The movement to establish gardens, therefore, and to have children work them, is just as real and patriotic an effort as the building of ships or the firing of cannon."

The 1917 record for food production and conservation must be surpassed. This means immediate action—for delays are dangerous. One more hour of daylight will give us more time to work our gardens.

The boys "over there" are depending upon us. Let's do our part.

FIGHT THE TAR WEED AND JIM HILL MUSTARD

One of the worst enemies which the farmers of Gilliam County have to contend with is the Jim Hill Mustard and the Tar Weed.

It is not an impossibility to rid your farm of these pests, then why grow them?

Several thousand acres of Gilliam County's best farm land is allowed to grow up in weeds every season.

Umatilla County says she can increase her wheat acreage by approximately 3000 acres by cutting down the width of the public roads, I believe Gilliam County can increase her wheat acreage many times this number by growing wheat and barley where there is now growing tar weed and Jim Hill Mustard. ### To the Residents of School District No. 25, Gilliam County, Oregon

The school clerk and board of directors of each school district in the County have been designated as a committee to secure the pledges for Gilliam County's quota of War Saving Stamps. This County has been assigned $82,000.00 to raise of which school Dist. No. 25 (Condon Dist.) is to raise $11,079.00.

Pledges for this amount must be obtained before the 28th of the present month, and all persons are requested to purchase their share of these stamps voluntarily and should call upon either of the undersigned and sign up their pledge card at once.

It is not necessary that the stamps be bought at once as you have up until Dec. 31, 1918, to make your purchases, but it is absolutely necessary that the pledges be secured before the 28th of the present month. Your pledge card, after it has been signed up will be left with the Postmaster and as you make your purchases they will be checked on the back of your card.

Signed, — A. S. Hollen
