Better Light at Lower Cost

Lalley-Light actually costs less than poorer light. It costs less because of the time it saves and the labor it saves. It costs less because it gives better light for after-night work. Because it makes the home more cheerful. Because its electric power runs the churn, and the separator, and the women can do other needful tasks. Because it enables you to have running water in house and barn. Consider Lalley-Light as an economy, and you will not be wrong—as owners' testimonials show. Call for the book of these letters, and for a free demonstration.

A. B. ROBERTSON, LOCAL AGENT CONDON, OREGON

These people are all believers in the same God and, so far as we have been able to discover, the individuals of one denomination are as upright, honest and good as the members of the others. It is impossible to believe that the God in whom we all believe has any preference for any individual or sect just because he or they believe in some particular form of baptism or some other equally unimportant system of religious faith or expression. An united and active Protestant church would be a credit to Condon which is more than can be said of the present condition.

A joyous Thanksgiving, this of 1918, yet deeply tinged with the pathos and glory of the white crosses our nation claims upon the fields and hillsides of France.

The ex-kaiser in Holland is said to be wearing civilian dress. Another case of "all dressed up and no place to go."

Why Not Unite?

There can be no question of the fact that Condon needs a live Protestant church but the need of having several little, poverty-stricken denominations, each one struggling to uphold its own particular creed as the essential doctrine of salvation, is not at all apparent. Here in Condon we have four established factions of the Protestant faith, each composed of individuals who refuse to look beyond the narrow confines of his or her own particular system or form of religious belief. Each has its church building and keeps up more or less of an organization at some expense. More regrettable than all, in such division there is weakness when in union there could be strength and if these four could get out of their little rut and get together on some working basis it would not be nearly so difficult to finance a church and be assured of good services every Sunday.
