The art of high-fire enameling

Sharon Amber explores the painterly art of high-fire enameling this fall with new works in silver and gold. The transparent gem colors come alive in her miniature landscapes and seascapes. Sharon lives and works in Cannon Beach and has practiced the ancient art of cloisonne since 1970. "I love the freedom of expression it affords," as high-fire enamels can last thousands of years.

Receptions Friday and Saturday at 5 p.m.
