Ecola Bible School alumnus graduates from University of St. Andrews

Hunter Daggett and his wife Amanda.

Hunter Daggett graduated with an MLitt degree on June 21, 2016, from University of St. Andrews in Scotland. His dissertation has recently been recognized by the British and Irish Association for Practical Theology and is on the short list for their 2017 annual prize.

Daggett worked at local establishments including Pizza a Fetta and the Cannon Beach Bakery from 1996 to 2005. His parents, Pete and Sue Daggett, are full-time Cannon Beach residents.

After graduating from Hillsboro High School in 1999, Daggett attended Portland Community College and Clatsop Community College. He graduated from Cannon Beach Ecola

Bible School in 2003, and married Amanda Butler at the Cannon Beach Community Church in 2005. He then attended George Fox University where he received his bachelor's degree in biblical studies in 2008.

Hunter, Amanda and their three children now live in Nairobi, Kenya, where has taught at Rosslyn Academy, a Christian-based school for the past six years.

Family members enjoyed the journey to Scotland for the graduation ceremonies, including his parents, Pete and Sue; in-laws Dan and Barb Butler, also of Nairobi; brother Jake Daggett and his wife Heather of Bend; and his aunt and uncle, Amy and Ron Petti, of Sunriver.
