North Coast Squid literary journal accepts submissions

One month to go for writers and artists to get their writing and art submissions ready for the 2018 North Coast Squid literary magazine.

Submissions for the sixth North Coast Squid will be accepted from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31. Submissions are accepted for fiction, nonfiction (includes memoir) and poetry. There is a Young Writers category for ages 18 and under.

All submissions are selected in a blind judging by authors and or poets outside the coastal area. Submissions of art, photos and photos of sculptures will also be solicited for cover art and inside art with final art chosen by a committee.

All work must be submitted electronically via the "submit" button on the North Coast Squid page of the www.hoffmanblog.org/north-coast-squid and must arrive by midnight Oct. 31.

Writers are invited to submit one piece per prose (fiction and nonfiction) category and three pieces for the poetry category. Word length for fiction and narrative nonfiction, including memoir, is 1,500 words each. All work must be previously unpublished.

Complete guidelines on format are at www.hoffmanblog.org.

The North Coast Squid, a program of the Hoffman Center for the Arts and the Manzanita Writers Series, showcases the work of writers and artists who live on the north Oregon coast or have a strong connection to the area. The next issue will be published in April 2018.

Andrea Hollander will judge poetry. She is author of four full-length award-winning poetry collections and has been awarded many fellowships. For 22 years she served as the writer-in-residence at Lyon College where she was awarded the Lamar Williamson Prize for excellence in teaching. She lives in Portland where she teaches workshops at the Attic Institute and Mountain Writers Series.

Diana Abu-Jaber will judge nonfiction. She is author of six award-winning books, her latest being "Life Without a Recipe" NPR, the Washington Post, L.A. Times and others have listed her books in the top books of the year category. She teaches at Portland State University and divides her time between Portland and South Florida.

Arthur Bradford will judge fiction. He is an O. Henry Award-winning writer with four books, the latest, "Turtle Face and Beyond" is a collection of short stories. Bradford is also creator and director of the acclaimed "How's Your News?" documentary series and the Emmy-nominated film "Six Days to Air," documenting the creation of the TV show "South Park."

April Henry will judge young writers' work. She is a New York Times bestselling author of 21 mysteries and thrillers for teens and adults. She lives in Portland and will make a special visit to the Neah-Kah-Nie schools in October as part of her partnership with the Squid.

The Manzanita Writer's Series is a program of the Hoffman Center for the Arts, a nonprofit dedicated to bringing arts, education and culture to the community. Information on all their programs is at www.hoffmanblog.org.
