RUSSIA'S RESENTMENT.

As might have been expected Russia is resenting the breaking of the treaty between that country and the United States. She has not proposed to declare war, or anything of that kind, but there are a good many indignation meetings being held, mostly behind closed doors, and efforts are to be made to "get even with the United States" for having so suddenly ended a treaty that was in force for so many years.

One of the propositions may result in great good to Russia, as well as to the rest of the world. It will certainly do so if the statements made by the man proposing it are correct.

At one of the meetings of protest, a map of Turkestan was shown, with a large area "marked off." It was claimed within the designated area splendid cotton can be grown, and it was argued that the Russian government take steps to develop cotton growing in Turkestan, "so Russia will not have to buy any more cotton from the United States."

An Indorsement.

"Mike," said Plodding Pete, "dis idea of recallin' judges, sounds like a good t'ing to me."

"Sure, I'd like to be brought before a brand-new judge every trip. He's more apt to be sympathetic."

How to Preserve Old Photos.

A unique way to preserve old photos is as follows: Put the photographs into clean hot water; very soon the pictures loosen and may be easily removed from the cards. When dry, either trim down to economize space or carefully cut away the background entirely. Mount them in a scrap book or a book made especially for kodak pictures. You will then have a book with which you can spend many happy moments looking over familiar scenes and faces.—National Magazine.

The First Umbrellas.

Those who suppose that the umbrella is a modern contrivance will be surprised to learn that umbrellas may be found sculptured on some of the Egyptian monuments and on the Nineveh ruins. That umbrellas bearing a close resemblance to those of today were in use long before the Christian era is shown by their representation in the designs on ancient Greek vases. The umbrella made its first appearance in London about the middle of the eighteenth century, when one Jonas Hanway, it is said, thus protected himself from the weather at the cost of much ridicule.

A Young Logician.

Jennie's mother was expecting company, but just before train time, says What to Eat, a telegram arrived which read: "Missed train. Will start same time tomorrow."

Jennie rushed home from school expecting to see the guest, but instead was shown the message. After reading it laboriously and carefully through she exclaimed, "Why, mamma, if she starts at the same time tomorrow she will miss the train again!"
