THE SLAB CREEK SAGE SAYS

Creditors and poor relations always show up at the wrong time.

Yet a man may not be lazy because he tries to do things the easiest way.

A woman may have faith in her husband, but she seldom believes more than half he says.

No woman talks all the time. When she is doing her hair her mouth is full of hairpins

A man may never realize what it is to be disappointed in love until he has been led to the altar by the female of his choice.

Clever.

"Peggy says you are clever," said the girl. "Why?" asked the man. "Because you tried to guess her age." "Oh, I didn't try to guess her age; I only tried to guess the age she'd like to be."—Yonkers Statesman.

Always.

"When do you think a wife is justified in taking money from her husband's pocket?" "Whenever she finds any there."—Baltimore American.

Entertaining Bill.

"Only got two hours' sleep last night." "What's the matter? Wife a way?" "No, but Bill, Smith's wife is."—Detroit Free Press.

Men and Fools.

A man can be as big a fool at thirty as he can be at twenty or, for that matter, at sixty, with this difference, that at twenty he doesn't know that he is a fool. He thinks that he is a god and enjoys the experience. At sixty he knows well enough what he is and thanks his stars that he has yet another chance before going down to the grave. But at thirty-five he has neither the illusions of youth nor the consolations of age. He is young enough to feel foolish and old enough to know better.—"Curing Christopher."

The Split Infinitive.

Mme. Sarah Grand writes to the London Express:

"The split infinitive is a somewhat sore subject with me, for I believe it is to be found in my own early work, with other errors of my youth of which I have long repented. When I come across the 'split' in my reading now it pulls me up with a horrid jar, and I believe that must always be the case once the ear has been tuned to the rhythm of the best English authors."

Heavenly Match.

Husband (irritably)—It isn't a year since you said you believed our marriage was made in heaven, and yet now you order me around as if I wasn't anybody. Wife (calmly)—Order, you know, is heaven's first law.—New York Weekly.

Abstemious.

"I'm not eating very much of late." "What's the matter, old man? Lost your appetite?" "No; my credit."—Boston Transcript.

What the Robin Eats.

In the northern and southern parts of the west the robin is among the most cherished of native birds. It is an omnivorous feeder, and its food includes many orders of insects as well as earth worms, but 58 per cent of its food is derived from vegetable matter, the principal item being fruit. The general usefulness of the bird is such, however, that protecting orchards and fruit should be tried before the policy of killing them is determined on.

Oyster Divers.

Oysters are obtained in various ways. At Minorca, in the Mediterranean, the fisherman simply dives to a depth of seventy feet, with a weight in one hand to carry him down. With the other hand he picks up as many oysters as he can carry and brings them to the surface.—London Telegraph.

Radishes.

Radishes originated in China, where they have been cultivated for many centuries and sometimes grow as big as a man's head. In Germany the old fashioned country mothers cure hoarseness and cough with radish juice mixed with sugar candy.

Eggs of the Alligator.

Alligators' eggs are eaten in the West India islands and on the west coast of Africa. They resemble in shape a hen's egg and have much the same taste, but are larger. More than a hundred eggs have been found in one alligator.

Used to Them.

The Plain One—And weren't you a bit nervous when he proposed to you? The Pretty One—Oh, dear, no! Proposals used to make me nervous, but not any more.—Exchange

Rhetoric.

Church—What is rhetoric? Gotham—Why, I believe it is something a man has to use when proposing marriage to a Boston schoolteacher.—Yonkers Statesman.
