GERMANY AND THE UNITED STATES.

If there should result from the American exchange of notes with Germany a disruption of the friendly relations which have existed for so many years, this country need not go to war with Germany. It will not take a step so drastic unless all other means have been exhausted.

It has been hinted that if Germany did not make amends for the slaying of Americans on the high seas, that the United States would sever its diplomatic relations with Germany. This would mean that we would recall Ambassador Gerard from Berlin and other consular agents in German cities, and it would also mean that Ambassador Bernstorff would be handed his passports in Washington and that all German consular agents in this country to take their departure. All business relations between the United States and Germany would be cut off. We would not buy from Germany, neither would we sell to it. It would be about the same as ignoring the existence of a German empire. Germany would be outlawed.

Whether the almost unprecedented proceeding will take place, remains for Germany to settle itself. It would be lamentable should such a condition of affairs be brought about. It would be disastrous to the interchange of business between these countries. Germany would feel the disadvantage of severed ties more than the United States, but both countries would be damaged. The world is not so large that one country can isolate itself and ignore other nations. The interests of one are the interests directly or indirectly, of another. There must be an interchange of ideas, of thought and of business, if all are to be broadened. No country can live within itself.

The severance of diplomatic relations which usually is accompanied by a declaration of war, would not mean such a declaration in this case. With Germany obstinate and unwilling to respect the lives of Americans on the high seas, this country would feel impelled to take such means as were at her command to protect her ships and this might mean naval convoys through the zones in which German submarines are active.

The belated official admission on the part of Germany that the sinking of the Gulflight was a mistake, and that she has no intention of destroying neutral ships, may be the opening wedge for a successful straightening out of the diplomatic entanglement resulting from the Lusitania tragedy.

It would seem that Germany can ill afford to lose the friendship of the United States at this particular time. Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Holland are all standing with the United States in this controversy, and the South American countries do not and cannot countenance Germany's behavior on the high seas. Germany would be left practically alone, if the United States should carry out its suspected move. Its friends would be limited to Austria-Hungary and Turkey, with Switzerland remaining absolutely neutral.

Miss Anderson Entertains at Picnic

Miss Olga Anderson gave a picnic to her friends on Saturday. The day being perfect, they enjoyed the cool of the woods immensely. A bountiful dinner was served to which all did ample justice. A snapshot was taken of the group; each one will have a picture when they are finished. They departed tired but happy, with the promise of another outing in the near future. Those present were the Misses Mary, Rose, Anna and Caroline Portman, Winnie Kellow, Mandie Armstrong, Dottie Bisette, Wanita Anderson, Opal France, Mildred McKillip and Master Billie Farmer.

HERE'S the ready chew! You can get genuine comfort and tobacco satisfaction without having to grind all the time! "Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew that tobacco chewers are telling one another about.

Pure, rich, sappy tobacco — seasoned and sweetened just enough.

The taste comes along steady—and it lasts you longer than the old kind. If you like real tobacco by all means buy a pouch.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.
