FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1915

Every day it becomes more and more apparent that a law should be enacted, if there is not already one, dealing drastically with automobile drivers who become intoxicated. If their own lives were the only ones endangered laxity might be tolerated. Every day or so we read of a drunken automobile driver hurling some innocent pedestrian into eternity, then follows an examination, and in some cases being drunk is offered as an excuse for the accident. If we haven't a law making it a crime to drive an automobile while under the influence of liquor one should be enacted. The lives of people have always, more or less, been endangered by the drunk, and since the advent of the automobile the danger has been many times multiplied.

RECONSTRUCTION IN MEXICO.

The task resting upon the shoulders of First Chief Carranza of the Mexican government will test his ability as a statesman and a general. He and his government which has been recognized by several nations, have taken over a land that has been devastated by five years of war, outlawry and anarchy. The fields have gone uncultivated, mines have been closed, private industries have been abandoned, labor has been unemployed, and the whole country is a picture of caos. The railroads have been rendered useless, the internal wealth and resources of the country are not producing, and all labor employing institutions are going to ruin. This is the condition in which Carranza finds things as he takes hold. The rehabilitation of Mexico is a tremendous job. It cannot be accomplished without aid from the United States or other nations, and not a dollar will they invest until they are assured that a stable government has been established. It is seldom that the leading citizen of any country has been called upon to reconstruct upon such a large scale with so little with which to begin work.

The Etude.

For music lovers, the world's foremost musical journal. The Etude stands first in circulation, age, interest and usefulness. It is not a musical journal but a home journal of inspiration, instruction and self-help which will add one hundred per cent to the enjoyment and profit of all musical work and understanding.

If you want the best ideas of the greatest musical thinkers send us $1.50 and we will send you The Etude every month for one year. You cannot make a better musical investment.

The contents of a dozen books of musical literature and music for the price of one. Every child studying music needs The Etude every day of the year. Ask your teacher.

Peculiarities of Russian Winters.

There is one curious thing about a Russian winter—in the latter part of October or the beginning of November the weather will be quite mild. Not a sign can be seen of an approaching change, when suddenly, without any apparent warning, a light haze will be seen in the northern sky, and in twenty-four hours the thermometer may fall 50 degrees. The change is so sudden and violent that travelers are frequently frozen to death before they can gain shelter. It has occurred that farmers out looking after their flocks have been caught in one of these blizzards and, missing their way home, have lost their lives, their bodies remaining under the snow until spring.
