Sizing Up His Customer.

A dejected, sallow, friendless looking, low spirited man walked into the grocery store.

"I want some clothesline," he said hesitatingly.

"Whatcher want it for?" asked the man behind the counter.

"To hang clothes on. The old lady's washing today."

"She is, heb?" said the shopkeeper, giving his customer the once over from head to foot. "Well, you go back and tell her to come down here and get it herself. The only way a fellow looking like you do can buy rope from me is on a prescription."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Costly Waterloo Medal.

Mr. Steward has included in "War Medals and Their History" a special account of the famous Waterloo medal of Pistrucci, which originated from the desire of George IV. in 1819 to commemorate the victory by the issue of a specially fine medal. Flaxman designed it, but Pistrucci, the chief engraver at the royal mint, refused to cut the dies and was himself commissioned to prepare a modeled design, which, being approved, he was instructed to cut the dies for a fee of £3,500. The dies were not finished until 1849, and of the men who were to receive the medal in gold the Duke of Wellington was the only survivor when the first impression was taken.

A Spiny Monster.

For sheer ferocity of appearance, unredeemed by any milder facial attributes, a lizard called after "Moloch horrid king" Moloch horridus is pre-eminent among reptiles. The body of this Australian reptile is so covered with spines that, as it has been put, nature seems to have endeavored to ascertain how many spines could be inserted on a given area. But, unlike its tutelary deity, who seems really to have spelled himself Molech, the lizard does not demand the blood of children. It is, indeed, vegetarian and only fiery in that it has a curious faculty of absorbing and drying up water. A specimen placed in a shallow dish attracted the water like blotting paper.

CLOVERDALE HOTEL SOLD

Henry Kamp Becomes Proprietor of the Hotel.

Friday last a deal was closed transferring from Chas. Ray to Henry Kamp and wife the Cloverdale Hotel property.

Mr. and Mrs. Kamp have been cooking in the hotel for the past eight months and recently, upon the resignation of Roy Estabrook, Mr. Kamp took charge of the institution, and now they are sole owners and managers.

They will make some needed improvements in the building and will put down a cement walk. They will make good, and make the hotel a success.
