THE COST OF THE STATE SCHOOLS.

The following is clipped from the Banks Herald and presuming the facts set forth are true, an investigation might be beneficial:

"It would be interesting to know if those who are so loud in their demands for beginning tax reduction at the top, institutions of learning, the Oregon Agricultural College and the State University.

"The more we consider the matter the more we are convinced that they are the product of a staggering economic waste. We have long since ceased to ask whether or not the results accomplished justify the expense attached. We have been convinced, against our own desire, that they do not.

"For the last two legislative periods these institutions have cost the state something over one and one-half million dollars biennially. This means that about one-fourth of the cost of that only half as many marriage licenses government of the entire state have been issued so far this year as dur- of Oregon has been made by the ing the same period last year. This is Agricultural College and the State University.

"Any big private university now-a-institutions are using up over three million dollars of the people's money. In 1913-1914 the Agricultural College appropriation was $850,054.82, and in 1914-1915 it was $975,000.00. In the schools in the state would reveal many former period the University appropriation was $612,833.73 and in the latter period was $724,602.04.

"The total appropriation for the two schools for the two biennial periods is $3,062,490.59.

"And the amount seems to increase from one session of the legislature to the other. It will have to stop somewhere, and the public will undertake to stop it would be willing to begin with our big themselves we think if it does not stop

"For our part we think the state would be the gainer if it would abolish the State University and confine the activities to the Agricultural College to reasonable limits.

"One would believe that with these huge sums pouring into the coffers of the state institutions, students could avail themselves of their facilities without cost. But it is not the case. It costs just about as much to attend the State University or the Agricultural College as it does to attend any private school in the state. Labratory fees, and matriculation fees, and examination fees and a multitude of other fees multiply to a formidable aggregate:

"Furthermore these institutions are attended by scores of young fobs who have considerable more money than is good for them and could well afford to pay their tuition. It is unjust to ask the small property owners and the the education of such. It is an insiduous and pernicious species of socialism anyway.

"An inspection of some of the private students paying their tuition and getting slong with less money than they would be able to get along with at the state schools.

"It seems evident that both institutions art being conducted at a cost that is beyond what is justified-merely because the taxpayer has to foot the bill."
