Look out for the last-minute jokers that are usually pulled off the day before election. Stories without the slightest truth are sometimes handed the voters when it is too late for them to be refuted. Look out for them.

A basket social is to be held in the Union Schoolhouse tomorrow (Friday) evening. The proceeds will be used to purchase pictures and song books for the school. We would be pleased to see a few Cloverdale people go as the cause is a worthy one, and we also know the teacher, Miss McKimens, would appreciate it.

Short Talks on the Brewers' Amendment.

A short talk was given at the church last evening by Rev. Youel, of Tillamook, and Attorney B. N. Hicks, of Portland. After a short talk at the church the gentlemen, in company with others, walked over to the Cloverdale hall where a moving picture show was in progress and after the show Rev. Youel gave a short talk and then introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hicks carefully explained the first joker in the brewers' amendment and explained it so thoroughly that a school boy could understand the trick that the brewers were endeavoring to play on the voters this fall. He also explained the seriousness of the question that is to be decided by the voters and without any exaggeration or elaboration gave a talk that could be understood by all.

He urged that unless the people here wanted brewers' agencies established on every corner where booze in original packages (uncorked bottles) could be purchased, to vote the brewers' amendment down.

One of the mistakes the voters are liable to make is this: When the Supreme Court defines the meaning of the law it would be on the intention of the framers of the bill and not as to the intention of the voters. This is logical and true. That little comma (,) so cleverly arranged is what changes the entire meaning of the measure, should it carry, would change the law. It cannot be considered as a mistake on the part of the writers of this measure, because the brewers secured men to write this amendment that are not paid to make mistakes, men who have brains and ability. It took brains and cunning to see that by inserting this little punctuation mark, the voters would cast a ballot that would not be true to their intention; also forever deprive them of the use of the initiative and referendum on the liquor question.

It was a regrettable fact that the meeting was called for a night when the moving picture serial was running, because it so shortened the time for the talk that the speaker could only bring a few facts. Had the date been set on an evening when there was no other entertainment a much larger crowd could have been had and an audience that had come prepared to hear a talk on the question without being confused with other things.

Compulsory Sport.

"So you've joined a golf club?"
"Had to do it," replied Mr. Growcher.
"The only chance of seeing some of the men I have to do business with is to meet 'em on the golf links."—Washington Star.

Conceited.

"Van Hamn, the actor, seems to be growing a trifle deaf. I wonder what caused it?"

"I'm sure I don't know, but he claims it is the result of constant applause."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

OUR MISTAKES.

The mistakes of today are lessons for tomorrow. Isn't it nice to think that tomorrow is a new day with no mistakes in it yet?—L. M. Montgomery.

Community Work as An Aid to Social Life

As the school year opens and the winter season draws near much thought should be given to community activities, and especially to social functions that will bring neighbors together for good times. It is hard to have too many of these, and in most places this side of life is apt to be neglected rather than overdone. Good wholesome fun is a tonic for mind, spirit and body. Both young and old need it, but especially should the young people be considered in this matter. A certain amount of recreation and pleasure is necessary to sharpen interest in life, and each community should feel responsibility for its young people.

The church and the school are good meeting places, for in these buildings every one should feel welcome.

Give thought to the social needs of your family and your neighborhood, then go about working out some of your mental possibilities. You will not work alone very long, and many pleasant meetings will result from your efforts.

Desserts For Children

Here is a formula for delicious and quickly made little sponge cakes: Sift together one and a half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a cupful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Into a cup break two eggs and fill the cup with milk. Pour the milk and eggs into the dry ingredients, beat five minutes. Bake ten minutes in patty pans. These cakes may be broken open, covered with berries and served with cream. With fresh or canned peaches they also make fine dessert.

A baked custard that is very good is made as follows: Mix three eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Add a pint of milk and bake in cups till set and browned on top. Serve warm in the cups in which it was baked.

If the family is tired of canned fruit use some of the canned peaches for the following pudding: Drain the juice from a pint of peaches, place the peaches in a baking dish, and to the juice add two beaten eggs, a cupful of milk, half a cupful of flour sifted with half a teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Beat well, pour over peaches and bake to a rich brown. Serve with sweetened milk or cream.
