TOO CLOSE TO BE COMFORTABLE

Reports Show that the Vote Will be Close and Only an Official Count Will Determine the Election.

At Times Reports from the Various States Show Hughes in the Lead and then Later Reports Show that Wilson is Close on His Heels in the Race.

The first reports that were received here on the evening of the election indicated an avalanche for Hughes. Later reports began showing that the election would be close. New York went strong for Hughes, while Ohio went two to one for Wilson.

Cook county, Illinois, gave a large vote for Hughes, but the outlying districts went in favor of Wilson.

The Oregon Journal, democratic, at noon yesterday claimed Wilson elected by five electoral votes.

Feeds Hens Prefer When Given Choice

Recent tests at the Missouri agricultural experiment station seem to show that the hen knows better than many other people how to select the food that will help her most in laying eggs and keep her in the best condition. Some old ideas with regard to poultry feeding were proved sound and some others were discredited by the hens. They almost all showed a decided preference for wheat, which is very generally used as a poultry feed. Kaffir stood next in popularity, but oats and sunflower were not eaten as much as many people would have expected, probably because the hen is not able to digest much food containing a high percentage of crude fiber. The hens that did eat sunflower seed were seen cracking them and eating only the softer portions inside, possibly because they wanted to get rid of the crude fiber in the shell.

Bran is often used in poultry feeding, but the hens in this test which could get other foods almost always chose it instead of bran. Alfalfa leaves were tried, but none eaten to any great extent.

Animal food of some kind, such as the beef scrap or sour milk, is generally regarded as very necessary for laying hens, but most of the hens in this test did not eat much more beef scrap while laying than while not laying. Two actually ate more of it when they were not laying.

Other tests at the Missouri station have shown that the use of either beef scrap or sour milk makes the hen's eggs record at least twice as good as though she were fed no animal food whatever and that sour milk is slightly better than beef scrap for this purpose, in addition to being cheaper and easier to get on most farms.

Raisin Sugar.

Sugar is manufactured from raisins in about all of the countries of southern Europe and western Asia.

Horses and Hares.

Unlike most animals, horses have no eyebrows, and hares are without eyelids.

Chromite.

Chromic iron ore, known as chromite, is produced in this country only in California.
