A Quiet Wedding

Last Sunday, at the home of the bride, Elsie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilson, was married to Fred Kreutz, of Oaksdale, Wash. Rev. R. Y. Blalock performed the ceremony. The young people will make their home at Oaksdale. Miss Elsie was one of our most popular young ladies, and a host of friends extend their best wishes for her future happiness.

Met Instant Death.

The sad intelligence reached the Courier office yesterday morning that Editor Wellington, of the Bay City Examiner had met with an accident that had cost him his life. Mr. Wellington was driving his car from Tillamook to Bay City and when he reached the railroad crossing was run into by a freight train. His head was crushed and his body badly mangled. Mr. Wellington was a young man and married and had been the editor of the Examiner for the past two years. He owned a Ford and used it in connection with the printing office to make a little extra money. The Courier extends sympathy to the bereaved wife.

Accompanying Mr. Wellington was a gentleman, whose name we did not learn, and who received some severe injuries, but not fatal. It is said when the train struck the car he grabbed and hung onto the cow catcher of the engine. He was taken to the Bay City hospital.

Where the accident occurred was at the Kodad Bend, where there is a heavy grade and it would be impossible to see the train until the track was reached.

Do Not Meddle With Your Ears.

Whatever plausible reasons laymen may have for treating some diseases, they should not meddle with the ear. It is a very sensitive and delicate organ, peculiarly liable to serious injury through the manipulations of men and women ignorant of its anatomy, functions and pathology. Judicious treatment is most important, but it is better to let ear troubles alone than to seek the aid of Aunt Samantha or take the advice of some officious neighbor.—Volta Review.

Only a Lady In the Making.

Five-year-old Freddy often showed pugilistic tendencies. One day he had been using his fists on three-year-old sister Helen. His visiting auntie said: "Freddy, don't you know that a gentleman never strikes a lady?"

Instantly Helen stopped crying and exclaimed, "They do too."

"Why, Helen?" said auntie. "When did you ever see a gentleman strike a lady?"

With an air of convincing proof the little maid replied, "Why, my daddy spansks me."—Christian Herald.

The Adder's Poison.

One of the most wonderful things in nature is the arrangement of the teeth in the mouth of the common adder or viper. The creature does not use its poison fangs when it bites the animals on which it feeds, and so by a very curious arrangement these fangs are laid back flat in the roof of the mouth out of the way of the ordinary teeth which are used for feeding. By this means the adder can use whichever set of teeth it pleases. One set will poison its enemy, and the other is more suitable for eating its food.

"Live Bait" For Alligators.

The negroes of Jamaica, in the British West Indies, use "live bait" to catch alligators. They tie a puppy to a tree near the alligator's haunt and await developments with a gun. The puppy's yelp is exactly like the bark of the baby alligator. Naturally Mrs. Alligator comes out of her mudhole in the lagoon, thinking somebody is troubling her offspring. Then the negro gets to work with his gun, and Mrs. Alligator falls a victim to her maternal affection.

Eugenie's Manner.

Of the visit to London of Napoleon III. and the Empress Eugenie, Disraeli wrote:

I was greatly disappointed with the empress. For me she had not a charm. She has Chinese eyes and a perpetual smile or simper which I detest. I understand that she is very natural—too natural for a sovereign—and that Napoleon looks sometimes as if he would be pleased with more reserve and dignity. She was always playing with the royal children, who doted on her, and was sometimes found sitting on the edge of a table. What do you think of that? The courtiers were horrified.—"Life of Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield."

DULL, DRAB MAN.

The men who are honest only because they have learned that honesty is the best policy, the men who tell the truth only because they are afraid they will be found out, the men who have none of that manliness that will stake all on a principle, are dull and drab.—Dean Charles R. Brown at Chautauqua.
