 Claude I. Myers, the paint and wall paper man of Tillamook County, has just closed a contract with Fred Beals to paint the barn, house and silos on Mr. Beals' Neskowin ranch. Anyone having painting to do or paper to hang will do well to drop him a card to Tillamook and he will call and estimate your work while in this neck of the woods.
 Last Saturday the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Schultz was severely scalded by falling into a tub of hot water. These good people seem to be having more than their share of bad luck, their daughter May having just been discharged from the hospital Friday where she had been operated on for appendicitis.

Last Tuesday evening Jimmie Earl came up town in his Ford to attend a meeting of the Glee Club and when it was time to go home he found that some miscreant had taken a tire and cut the inner tube, leaving it in the road beside the machine. Someone seems to have a mania for this class of work and if he is caught it will doubtless go pretty hard with him for such a despicable coward merits the severest punishment that can be meted out. The tire was found later near the trestle north of the bridge.

 Wirt Sappington has commenced building a new house and barn.

Tea Drinking in Siam.
 Tea is to be found in every tent and dwelling in Siam. There is always a kettle on the fire filled with tea and prepared for drinking, which is done by adding milk, butter and salt. This is their way of fixing this beverage. A peculiar mode of hospitality is shown by these people in reference to their tea. It is always at the disposal of every stranger and traveler. He need not ask for it. Neither is it expected that he should, but he must have his own cup. This is imperative, and accordingly every one carries a cup with him at all times. Some of these utensils are marvels of workmanship and are highly valued.

Mechanical Decoy Ducks.
 For use when duck shooting there are mechanical decoys, which are able when wound up to quack and swim. When the wild birds appear they are easily deceived by the quacking and soon fall victims to the hunter's gun.
 The mechanism is so arranged that at certain intervals the decoy gives utterance to a shrill call, swimming about in the water meanwhile by means of a propeller and rudder that gives it a remarkable resemblance to its living prototype.
 When it is necessary to clean it or adjust the machinery the decoy can be opened and taken apart. The propeller is driven by clockwork, which also regulates the phonographic apparatus.

Deceived by a Cloud.
 The instinct of animals is sometimes supposed to be more infallible than human reason, but a scientist's observations of the katydid rather contradict that opinion. The katydid, with its musical membranes, produces two distinct "songs," one peculiar to the night and familiar to everybody, the other a daytime tune, which is rather a rasp than a melody. According to the scientist mentioned, it is sometimes quite comical to hear the singers suddenly change their tune when a dark cloud obscures the sun, immediately resuming their daytime song when it has passed. This recalls the hens that go to roost during a solar eclipse.

Two Heroes.
 Miss Martineau in her "History of the Thirty Years' Peace" tells a touching story of the wreck of the Rothsary Castle. "Two men, strangers to each other, found themselves holding on to the same plank, which, it soon appeared, would support only one. Each desired the other to hold on, the one because his companion was old, the other because his companion was young, and they quitted their grasp at the same moment. By extraordinary accidents both were saved, each without the knowledge of the other, and they met on shore in great surprise. Few greetings in the course of human life can be so sweet and moving as must have been that of these two heroes."

The Walking Steeple.
 At Holywell church, in Wales, an old bell is kept which was used in a novel way to call people to worship. The position of the church causing any bell rung there to be inaudible in some parts of the town, a peripatetic ringer used to be employed, whose performances were thus described: "A leather strap is suspended round his neck, and a large and heavy bell attached to it, which rests upon a cushion buckled over his knee. Thus accoutered, he traverses the town, jingling his bell, to the surprise of those who are unacquainted with the custom. 'The walking steeple,' he was called by the townspeople."

If it Isn't an Eastman It isn't a Kodak!

This phrase is used by the Eastman Kodak Co. to acquaint the public with the fact that they are exclusive manufacturers of the Kodak, also the Graflex, Freno and Brownie Cameras.
 These cameras have been before the public and in use for years and have proved their superiority over all other makes.
 Why buy an inferior camera when you can get the best at practically the same cost?
 We have the Eastman line of Kodaks and Cameras only.
FROM $2.00 UP
 The same price the world over.

YOU and men who are proud of themselves are mighty ready to learn about the little nibble of W-B CUT that does away with so much grinding and spitting. As soon as they learn to suck away a little of the shreds in their cheeks and to let it alone, they find out the difference there is between any tobacco and the excess-flavored stuff. The touch of salt in W-B helps to bring out the tobacco satisfaction.
