A recent letter from Frank Clarke states that the family are now comfortably located in Portland. He also says that "every where we have been grain, fruit and vegetables are burnt and dried up."

Probably the wildest-eyed, conscience-stricken man in this section last Friday morning was A. W. Parker, and there's a reason. A man who would leave a beautiful girl in a cellar when the house was burning down, certainly deserves to pass sleepless nights to say the least.

The manufacturing of whiskey within the boundaries of the United States was stopped at 11 o'clock last Saturday night. It is estimated that there are about three hundred millions of gallons of booze now in storage in this country, and from what we can learn the boot leggers in Baker have a big stock on hand.

Miss Hazel Herr, who attended summer school in Portland under the supervision of Ruby Shearer Brennan, considered one of the most proficient primary teachers in America, is justly proud of the certificate she has received which states that she has completed the special course in primary work and all the regular subjects taught in grades one, two and three.
