CHAMOIS SKIN IS RARE.

What Often Passes For It Is Really the Hide of Sheep.

The article known as chamois comes under the head of articles known as names that do not in every way describe them. A large New York firm, rather than save its patrons think they were getting one thing when in reality they were getting another. Long devoted a good deal of advertising space in daily papers to an explanation of the trade term and its difference from that of the genuine article.

The chamois, runs the explanation, is a goat-like type of antelope with small horns inhabiting the Pyrenees, Alps, Carpathians and the mountains of Western Asia.

There was a time chamois hide was used to make "shamony" skins, but the chamois goat or antelope is practically extinct. Now all the chamois skins are sheepskins. When the skin is split up as to make two skins the flesh side is used to make "chamois."

All valuable chamois skins are untanned sheepskins. In this connection it might be well to remark that deer-skin gloves are not made of doeskins, for the American antelope, whose hide was doeskin, is as rare as the dodo or the buffalo.

The making of the so-called chamois skin is a rather interesting operation. Along the shore of Long Island and beyond Islip you are apt to be assailed, if the wind is from the south, by an odor which reminds you of chamois.

It is not the odor of the skin, however, but the pungent smell from a fish oil factory where tons of menhaden are boiled for the oil the fish contains. All sheepskins used in the making of chamois leather, so called, are treated with nothing but this fish oil. The skins are immersed in vats of the oil and are permitted to remain there for a month or more. Then they are wrung out and hung up to dry, turning meanwhile a yellow color.

If a white or cream shade is desired the skins are bleached in the sun. Shoe and Leather Reporter.

THE CAMERA AS A DETECTIVE.

Its Keen Eye Sees Things the Microscope Cannot Discover.

The camera has been frequently instrumental in the detection of criminals. In cases of forgery photography is invaluable, for there is no forger in the world clever enough to baffle its detective skill.

An interesting proof of this was provided a few years ago in the case of a forged will. An enlarged photograph revealed the penciled lines over which the names of the testator and witnesses had been written, although no trace of them was visible through the microscope. This is one of the peculiarities of the camera, that it brings to light marks which are invisible through a microscope, just as it has been known to reveal the signs of measles and smallpox several days before they became visible to the naked eye.

When a forged signature is suspected the method adopted is to take photographs of the genuine and supposed false signatures, magnify each a hundredfold or more and compare the results. Under this careful test the slightest discrepancy becomes exaggerated out of close resemblance to the signature, and every sign of hesitancy—for few forgers can write a counterfeit signature with perfect ease and fluency—stands revealed.

A forged banknote, however minutely and faithfully the original may have been copied, cannot deceive the eye of the camera, which will show not only the slightest deviation from the genuine note, but also any difference in the texture of the paper used. In a recent case, where a section of a check had been removed and another piece in the form of pulp substituted with infinite skill, the camera revealed the fraud at once, showing exactly where the new and old papers were joined.

Broken In Transit.
Little Gwennie felt it her duty to entertain a man who had been called in to do some carpenter work and began by asking if he had a papa and mamma. He said yes. Then she asked if he had any brothers or any sisters. He replied by saying he had three half brothers and three half sisters. After looking at him for a moment intently she said:
"Are you the only whole one there was?"

Renewal time is here.

Our Immigrants.
The immigrants who have been landed at Ellis Island have been of a higher type than those of an earlier time. Of course there has been a wonderful change in their dress. When I first went into the work it was like going to the opera, the native costumes we used to see whenever a shipment of immigrants landed. Now there are very few national costumes to be seen.—Christian Herald.

Republics and Gratitude.
"Do you regard republics as ungrateful?"
"Such historical reading as I have done," replied Senator Sorghum, "does not lead me to think so. Sometimes they are only naturally resentful of being persistently flimflammed."—Washington Star.

Bully Solution.
Professor Pat, what is your solution to the world problem? Pat—Well, sor, I think we should have a world democracy—with an Irishman for king.

Are You Eating To Win the War?

This Newspaper recommends
Today's Housewife to every patriotic woman who wishes to help win the great war

Today's Housewife is especially needed by every homemaker in the present war-crisis, because the seven Courses in Domestic Science now running in the magazine help housewives to better select, prepare and conserve food supplies, to cut down waste, and at the same time to add to the health and welfare of the entire family.

Today's Housewife is the only magazine that maintains a model home where cookery recipes, new household devices, cleaning methods, etc., are put to practical tests before their appearance in the pages of the magazine.

The monthly lesson on "Cookery, Foods and Nutrition" under the direction of Caroline Hunt of the Department of Agriculture, is alone worth the price of a ten-year subscription not only to the woman who follows each lesson but to the government of the United States in helping to win the terrific war with the Central Empires of Europe.

Favorite Magazine of Home-loving Women

REMEMBER, better home-making is the ideal back of TODAY'S HOUSEWIFE, its reason for existence, its earnestly planned-for goal. Better home-making in its largest sense, with the spiritual and mental no less than the material needs of the family in view; home-making as the biggest of woman's opportunities rather than house-keeping as the most dreary of woman's drudgeries.

While Today's Housewife stands in a class by itself in its practical value to homemakers, it is also noteworthy for its wonderfully inspiring editorials and special articles, for its clean, delightful stories, and its beautiful illustrations and covers by leading artists. Over one million women agree that TODAY'S HOUSEWIFE is worth several times the price of 10 cents per copy.
