"Good morning, papa," says the Crown Prince to Wilhelm. "The United War Work Campaign has gone over the top." And what Wilhelm answers in reply is something that no father should say in the presence of his eldest child.

WORKING IN UNITY

Japan and the United States Exchange Ideas.

Island Empire Owes Its System of Technical Education to an American, and in Return Has Taught Us Much.

The arrival here sometime ago of a mission of eight officers of rank and distinguished record from Japan is proof of at least two things. It witnesses to the steadfastness of the national character, in seeking progressiveness as well as progress; and to Japan's purpose to keep in the foreground of invention and achievement, remarks New York Sun. No other nation realizes more keenly that in the rivalry of civilization the old must perpetually be renewed. There can be no standing still.

From the dawn of history Japan has excelled in fine and dainty work. Her museums illustrate the fact that her craftsmen invented and adapted. A little more than a real, not a poetical, "cycle of Cathay," that is, sixty years ago, according to oriental reckoning, the hermit nation suddenly found herself in the market place of the world. Though at first dazed, resources of hand and material were not lacking. Age-old taste, skill, experience and reserve armies of trained craftsmen were at hand. Foreign teachers conferred no gift of brains or secrets of cunning. They simply pointed out the new paths and taught the modern methods of meeting the nation's needs. As early as 1861-63, after three years' labor, our own Raphael Pumpelly, still among us in vigor, revolutionized mining methods in Japan. When, in 1868, the intense inward political struggles between the old and the new were over, and Japan had a truly national government, the alertness of her people to the new situation supplied a striking feature in the history of modern education.

At a date when in Europe manual and technical training was still new, and among us the Rensselaer Polytechnic school at Troy was a lonely veteran, Yale and Harvard were at beginnings in this form of education, and even the Massachusetts Institute of Technology a baby, Japan had started in the race. Even before the department of education had been created, the necessity of Japan's training her own engineers, chemists and masters of applied science was pointed out to the important government. The newly elaborated scheme dividing the empire into eight great educational districts was, with the curricula, submitted to an American for criticism. He noted the serious defect of no provision for technical education. A long letter outlining courses of technical education and addressed to the Dai Jo Kuan, the supreme council, fell as spark upon powder. The department of education was created and a technological school started simultaneously in Tokyo. The system has ever since that time had a healthful development.

In addition to the eight universities and 37,810 lower schools of all sorts, there are now in operation under the government eighteen technical schools of the higher order, requiring a four years' course after graduation from the middle schools, while those under local or private auspices number many more. It was settled at court, by the United States minister in Yeddo, in the case of Raphael Pumpelly, that an engineer, civil, mining, or mechanical, was a gentleman and eligible to audience of both the president of the United States and the emperor of Japan. Ever since, the official and social status of a man trained to use his hands and brain in unity has been secure in the mikado's empire. At least two scores of Americans have received imperial decorations for promoting technical science in Japan.

Nothing but good can come of mutual exchange of ideas. What the Japanese have borrowed from us is in the limelight, and we boast of it; what hundreds of American inventors and seekers for knowledge have found in Japan and taken as loan is cryptic and untrumpeted. Yet our debt is none the less real. It is well for the two civilizations to enrich each other. If, in admiring legend, King Solomon set the mechanic on the throne to signify the basis of his realm's wealth, none the less should both republic and empire honor the technician who unites power of brain and the discipline of education to dexterity of manipulation. Honor to the technical workers of Japan and America!

Finland's Aristocracy.

One of the anomalies of Finland, now struggling for its independence, is that it has inherited a foreign aristocracy, speaking Swedish. How foreign it remains to the true interests of Finland may be seen from the fact that it has all along worked for German intervention in Finland; and even helped to send thousands of young Finns to join the German army. With the importation of German rulers into Finland, the Finnish language will have one more competitor to cut it from the linguistic field, unless Swedish is entirely driven out by the language of the newly arrived supermen.

SPORTSMEN ATTENTION

Friends and Fellow Sportsmen:

It has come to my notice that for some time past the people of Eagle Valley and Lower Powder sections have been killing Chinese Pheasants. It is certainly with much regret that I receive these reports. I have heretofore placed the utmost confidence in the sportsmen of these sections and certainly have given them no cause to complain of my treatment of them. I do not follow people on their camping trips to see if I can make an arrest for some trivial matter and have otherwise shown that I believe in the old adage that at least nine out of ten men are honest.

These birds were raised and liberated in your sections at a great expense to the State and you promised that you would give them the protection necessary until such time as an open season would be warranted. You have not done so and have broken faith with your State and those that reposed confidence in you. Do you think that the man who breaks the game law is better than the man who steals your stock? The game law is just as sound as any other law, and deserves the same consideration.

I still believe that I am right in thinking that nine out of ten of you are honest and law-abiding citizens and am going to make an appeal to you all as friends and lovers of the great out of doors to assist me in the further protection of your game. I as warden wish to be considered your servant, to assist you in keeping your streams and hills replenished with game, not as an enemy and by as some would lead me to believe. I therefore ask you to cooperate with myself and the game department in the enforcement of the game code, and will offer $50.00 reward for any information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of any one found guilty of killing Chinese Pheasants out of season.

Sportsmen! Show me that my confidence in you has not been betrayed. Very sincerely yours,
 I. B. Hazeltine,
 District Game Warden
 Baker, Grant, Malheur and Hatney counties.—Paid adv.

Why women in war time insist upon GOSSARD CORSETS

The Original Front-Lacing Corset

The name Gossard on the inside of the corset guarantees the increased efficiency of any woman who works—whether it be house work, office work, farm work or any one of the many duties that patriotic women have so cheerfully and uncomplainingly assumed during these war times. No garment is so essential for the well being of the women of our country as the Gossard Corset.

The name Gossard is your guarantee of health. Your family physician will tell you that a correctly fitted Gossard safeguards your health by giving a hygienic body support that can be found only in the unequalled design, soft pliable materials and scientific boning that characterizes these world-famed corsets.

It is your guarantee of a priceless all-day comfort. A correctly fitted Gossard will conserve your energy and increase your efficiency. The name Gossard is your guarantee of true corset economy. It is your guarantee of a wearing service that alone is worth the price of the garment.

The name Gossard is your guarantee of inimitable style. The perfect front and perfect back of a Gossard are and always will be the despair of those attempting imitations.

Boy, Page Mr. Burbank.

Atlanta, Ga.—A cornstalk in the war garden of M. J. Yarbrough has just produced five ears of corn and a head of wheat growing out of one of the corn ears. Both corn and wheat kernels are fully developed. The "samples" were sent to Herbert Hoover, with pertinent comment.

Nerve Tonic Was Corn Cure.

St. Louis, Mo.—Mistaking a bottle of "corn cure" for a nerve remedy, Miss Olga Pitt, nineteen, took a big dose. She was soon hurried to the City hospital in a serious condition.
