BOY SCOUTS

CLEMENCEAU PRAISES SCOUTS

On the day of a march-past of the French boy scouts before President Poincare, the minister of war, M. Clemenceau (nicknamed "The Tiger"), received an ovation from the scouts. It was evident that the boy scouts particularly took his fancy, and when they had marched past he poured out his congratulations on their smart appearance.

In a speech of his a few days later on the armistice he pointed out that just as the soldiers had up to that moment been the most important people in the country, all must now look forward to forming an equally strong force of men for insuring peace and prosperity that should follow the war. The "poilus de la guerre" must be succeeded by the "poilus de la paix."

As he was the inspiring leader of the former it is only natural that he should have now been asked to be the leader of the French scouts, a position he has just accepted with the title of chief scout.

C. C. Cole, chief of police in Long Beach, Cal., answering a question as to the boy scout movement in relation to the juvenile problem in this city, states that during his four years as a police official there has not been one case of trouble caused by a scout.

"As to their help to the city," he continues, "I have used them many times to help our police department. The last four years I have used the boy scouts on the Fourth of July, using about 50 at a time, picked from the different troops; each boy is furnished a boy scout police badge. They work in pairs with a patrol leader in charge of each squad. They principally look out for fires, lost articles and lost children. One year they brought in over 60 lost children to the beach sub-station. Last year the squad patrolling the pier extinguished three small fires."

BADEN-POWELL TO SEE SCOUTS.

In a cablegram received at the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America the announcement is made that Gen. Sir Robert S. Baden-Powell will visit the Boy Scouts of America either in May or June—at such time as convenient to the organization here.

Since the Boy Scouts of America have been asked by the French government to take leadership in formulating an educational program along scouting lines, much attention is being drawn to the possibilities of closer international relations among the great scout brotherhood.

One of the matters that the leaders in this country will discuss with General Baden-Powell, the founder of the boy scouts, is the furthering of a closer international bond.

BELGIAN SCOUTS SEND CABLE.

National headquarters has received the following cablegram from the boy scouts of Belgium:

"Delivered from the yoke of enemy occupation the Belgian boy scouts hasten to send to their brothers their warmest expressions of greeting. They hope that the feeling of brotherhood born on the field of battle will continue between their country and yours that the ties of friendship may become closer and closer between the scouts of your organization and the Belgian boy scouts."

The report of the fourth year of scouting in Belgium shows tremendous forward strides, despite the obstacles placed in its path by the war.
