J. M. Dunahoo does all kinds of express and dray work, and will be prepared to attend to transfer of baggage, etc., when the railroad reaches this place. See his ad.

Don't forget to place your farm to sell with R. E. Hoskinson.

The well-known Moro Mercantile Co. have sold out their store business to Messrs Brehm, Freidenthal and Matthews. The purchases will take possession as soon as the matter can be arranged.

Will buy your fat cattle. Will sell you choice beef, pork, mutton and vegetables. PAGE & PARRY, Moro.

Prof. W. A. Wetzel gave a very interesting and sound talk last Friday evening on "Literature," eloquently and forcibly illustrating the difference between good and bad, and showing how teachers may impress their scholars with the beauty of good literature.

We furnish the OREGONIAN at $1.75 per year in advance.

City Hotel, first-class, terms reasonable. Headquarters for commercial travelers. JULIUS J. WILEY, Proprietor.

G. D. Woodworth is putting in a new portable saw mill on Samuel McCartney's timber claim. The frame for the mill was put up by Fred Hertz, and the machinery is now being received. The mill will cut about 25,000 feet of lumber a day.—Glacier.

J. W. the management and Spokane branches of the American Type Founder's Brands has become well known to a large number of printers with whom he has had business dealings.

The Moro Water Co. are digging a well near the Moro Mfg. Co's shops. When it is finished there will be an abundance of water in the two wells to keep their steam pump running steadily whenever at work, thus saving fuel, and insuring plenty of water at all times for use and to fight fire in case it be needed.

Just one week ago today, Oct. 5, our friend John H. Berger, of Grass Valley, was united in wedlock with Anna Johnson, at the residence of the bride's brother in Portland. This office is in receipt of a card announcing the fact, and we join their many friends in congratulations and best wishes for the future of the happy pair.

The agents of the Parmelee Traveling Library established a branch in Moro, with about 31 subscribers. Wm. Hoggard is librarian, and the first section of the library is at his place of business. The books are a very ordinary looking set, and deal principally with Spain and Spanish history, with a few books on money.

Last spring Fred Walker, of Rutledge, was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of shooting J. C. O'Leary. At the time, comment prejudicial to Walker appeared in at least one of the county papers. The finding of not a true bill by the grand jury last week, was expected by many, and of course was eminently satisfactory to Fred and his friends, who thought the boy justified in what he did. It is hoped the lesson will be heeded by him, and that he will avoid in future as far as possible any controversy of like nature.

been to prov height for the the desk you son, it apper chair espec her heigh exactl from the floo x feet high the chan be eighteen inches. The width the seat should exactly equal its height, and it should slope backward three fourths of an inch to the foot.

The back should be a trifle higher than the seat, and sloped slightly, not too much. Finally, your desk should be two thirds as high again as the seat of your chair. Thus, if your chair-seat is twenty-four inches, the desk should be forty inches in height. When you have attended to all these little details you can sit and write all day without feeling that backache that comes from chairs and desks that don't fit you properly.—Boston Traveler.
