Papa—"So Emily stands at the head of her class in French?"

Mamma—"Yes. She and another girl were exactly even in the written examinations, but it was decided that Emily shrugged her shoulders more correctly like the French."

The Sister—"I have become engaged to Fred."

The Brother—"Whatever induced you to do that?"

The Sister—"Why, Fred, of course!"

"I say," said Hewitt to Blewit, "you don't seem to growl about your wife so much as you used to?"

"No!" quoth Blewit; "ever since I read the King of Sam had 600 I have been quite content with my lot."

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c. per box. Sold by A. D. Bolton & Co., Druggists.

Spots—"Doctor, do you believe that the use of tobacco tends to shorten a man's days?"

Doctor—"I know it does. I tried to stop it once, and the days were about eighty hours long."

Ada (pensively)—"I hope you'll invite me to the wedding when you get married."

Jack (boldly)—"I'll invite you before I ask any one else, and if you don't accept there won't be any wedding."

Struck The Wrong Man.

Prof. D. G. Brinton, the famous authority upon archaeology and linguistics, has given his valuable library upon these subjects to the university of Pennsylvania, to be used by many writers embodying his personal researches. It is doubtful, however, whether his papers include the following incident, the truth of which is vouched for:

While in Mexico, on one occasion, the professor was the guest of the National Historical Society of that republic. One day, while discussing with a member on the street the blends of Aztec and Maya blood which enter into the average peon, the professor called attention to cranial peculiarities transmitted from these ancient races.

"There," he said, pointing to a laborer who was working on the street, "is a type in which apparently the maternal influences were Toltec and the paternal Maya, or Carib."

"I see," said the member.

"Notice the man's forehead," continued the professor; "it has all the characteristics of—"

"Phats' that?" interrupted the supposed peon, dropping his pick.

"Phats' that you're saying, ye long-legged pervaricator? I'll have ye know me fayer was a O'Shannessy and me mayther a Finnegan!"—Philadelphia Post.

Some advocates of the Darwinian theory allege that monkeys can talk, but that they are too smart to let this be known, for fear they will be made to work. This idea is borne out by the fact that the monkey "who" escaped from the Portland Heights Park a few days ago, when, after a long chase, he was captured by some boys, and brought back to the park, not only put his paw through a crack in the box in which he was confined and shook hands with his brother, who had remained in confinement, but actually gave this brother a
