The I. O. O. F. lodge will install officers at the next meeting of the order which will be Monday night July 20th.

D. E. Stephens came home Wednesday from a trip to Utah and Idaho, on business for the experiment station.

Mrs. J. O. Elliott is here from Vancouver, Wash., and is staying at the Dewey Thompson ranch until after harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rakes and V. Hayes attended the funeral of Billy Fritts, a nephew of Mrs. Rakes, last Tuesday.

R. B. Webb returned Monday from his trip to Nephi, Utah, where he attended the meeting of the Western agronomists.

Harvey Thompson drove to Camp Sherman and Camp Ringwaak last week end to take some Boy Scouts on their vacation.

L. J. Pape and wife were here the first of the week from their home near Sherwood, to see their grain crop in Sherman county.

Wayne and Gordon Thompson, Lloyd Hendricks and Howard Conlee are at the Boy Scout camp on Suttle Lake this week.

Arthur Bucholtz is working in the harvest field north of Wasco this week and Evelyn Christensen is assisting in the confectionery.

J. A. Faris of Washington, D. C., is at the experiment station to make a study of wheat smuts for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Geo. Vintin and family moved to Moro last Friday to take up their permanent residence here since Mr. Vintin was appointed county clerk.

John Strahl, a former resident of Moro, but now living in Portland, is here visiting at the Hockman ranch and shaking hands with old friends.

J. D. May and son moved their band of sheep through town Sunday to the Roy Powell ranch where they will work summer-fallow until after harvest.

Ralph Bjabane spent his vacation improving the appearance of his yard by sloping the bank to the street, preparatory to putting a rockery along there.

Sheriff Chrisman and wife attended a Christmas family reunion in Albany last Sunday, leaving here Saturday afternoon and returning Sunday night.

R. C. Byers left Thursday morning for Government Springs near Stevenson, Wash., with his daughter and granddaughter who will remain there for several weeks.

William Cody left his duties at the creamery station for a few days the first of the week in order to visit his daughter and family in Portland. He returned Wednesday morning to relieve C. A. Binder who handled the station for him.

The first load of wheat was delivered to the Farmers' National Grain Company's elevator Tuesday afternoon by Jess Landry. It was bulk wheat with a test of 59 pounds. No accurate estimate of the yield could be given until a larger part of the field was threshed.

MILDRED GINN WRITES

as earnestly and he could not understand. He had prayed for success in some kind of a lottery game whereby he might have won much money to use in the service of the Lord. Miss Beaver explained how the Lord could not answer such a prayer that was contrary to His will and the man was relieved.

The story with its present ending is rather sad though we trust the final ending will not be so. Miss Beaver called on him daily. The Roman Catholics, very much in charge of the hospital, took notice of her interest and one day when she was making her customary call, she found his bed empty and could gain no information as to his whereabouts. When she returns to Madras she hopes to find some trace of him. The Roman Catholics have gained such strong holds in this land.

The Lord answered prayer for me yesterday, or I saw the answer yesterday. I expected my check last week and when it didn't come I was a little concerned as we were leaving the first part of the week and I had no money to settle up my accounts or for traveling expenses. My mail from Springfield had always been sent to Quilon and then forwarded on to me and I had not asked them to change the address for this short time. Mail forwarded from Quilon would not reach here till after we had left. I did not want to go in debt so I prayed and committed the matter to the Lord. Yesterday the check arrived, sent from Springfield direct to Coonoor.

I had another nice day in Ooty Saturday. Miss Jupp and I went up by bus Saturday morning, reaching there at 10:15. Burgess met us and took us first to the Governor's Gardens where the 'Girl Guides' (similar to American Camp Fire Girls) were going through their drills, etc., for Lady Stanley. Governor Stanley was not there for the program, but drove in at the close. He is Governor of the Madras Presidency—the premier presidency of India. It was very interesting to watch the different divisions; the Indian girls dressed in their uniform blue saris with white waists, the Anglo-Indian girls or Eurasians and the European group.

We saw an unusual sight in the sky while in the Garden—a rainbow encircling the sun. We could take only a wee peek now and then because of the blinding effect of the sun, but it seemed to be a complete circle. It is now Tuesday afternoon and have just finished a morning job of packing—something of a job, but one I'm beginning to get used to. The packing of the samon (luggage) into the car is yet ahead, but I may be excused from that task. Winne said the youngsters at the school wanted to help and there would be no need for me.

We are really leaving, I believe, in the morning. We may take a new and longer route home, going by way of Madara. It will be an interesting trip and we may miss the rains which have begun in Travancore.
It has been ever so warm today and we have had no fog or rain since Saturday. The real moonsoon has not broken here.
Did I tell you that malaria has been raging in Yercaud? Several at Lakeview have had it and nearly all of the Indians in the village. It is an awful disease. So hard to get out of your system when it once gets a hold of you.

Quite a number of Parsees were present in a group near us. The Parsees I mentioned in my last letter are the Jews of India. It is thought by some that it was during the Dispersion that these Jews came to India and intermarried with the people of the land. They are comparatively few in number but a wealthy, handsome and refined class. Many of the Parsees have beautiful homes and fine cars and are quite European in their tastes—most of them speak English. The men and children wear European clothing, but the women wear the most exquisite silk saris and a longer blouse than the Indian women. They also wear shoes and stockings, while the Indian women go barefooted.
Of course, they bear the Jewish stamp on their faces. There is a rare dignity and charm about them—at least from an observer's standpoint. They worship the sun and fire. In Towers of Silence their dead are buried or, rather, elevated. The bodies are placed exposed on top of high towers. The bones eventually falling down into a pit below.
No special news and not much time for just talk. Next letter will be one written from Quilon. Love to my Darling Folks. Mildred.

OREGON NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST

The government emergency landing field at Pendleton will be taken over by the city and operated as a municipal airport next January 1.

Corporation papers for a new fruit canning, packing and dehydrating plant at Milton were filed in the Umatilla county clerk's office recently.

The Pendleton water department has taken a step to aid in the depression period by reducing the minimum water rate charge of $1 to 75 cents.

Building permits issued in the city of Astoria for the first six months of 1931 total $306,733, or almost twice as much as the combined total for 1929 and 1930.

Only 1 per cent of the population of Oregon and Washington 10 years old and over are illiterate, the census bureau announced. Iowa is the only state with a better percentage.

Ten tons of loganberries have been sold from the three-acre tract on the H. H. Clark farm near Dayton, and there will be three more pickings. More than 40 pickers have been employed.

Port Orford, at last, is electrically lighted, a plant having been established there by Frank Seal. The town has a 24-hour service, and the people are quite enthusiastic over the new industry.

Postoffice receipts at Medford for the year ending June 30 showed an increase of $2,824.22, according to the report of W. J. Warner, postmaster. Gross receipts during the fiscal year were $161,297.66, as compared to $157,374.64 for the same period ending in 1930.

A severe freeze struck gardens a severe jolt to the Wallfwa community during the past week, doing much damage to tender vegetables. E. K. Hunter of Middle Valley, who has 19 acres of potatoes, reports that most of the vines were frozen nearly to the ground.

Cherry shipments have come abruptly to an end at Hood River with the shipment of three cars, as against 47 cars last year. A number of growers attempted to pick their crops. However, the percentage of cracked cherries was too great to justify the expense of harvest.

Harley Newport, 8, was shot accidentally by his uncle, Jim Newport, at the Barker mill on Rhea creek near Heppner. The shotgun was wrapped in some bedding, and in moving this the gun was discharged accidentally, the shot striking the boy, who was about ten feet away.

At a recent meeting of the church board it was decided to rebuild the Wheeler Community church which was destroyed by fire a few days ago. The lot upon which the church formerly stood is to be sold to school district No. 45 and will complete its properties, and the church board will erect the new edifice on a slightly lot overlooking Nehalem bay on Nehalem boulevard.

Voting precincts in Wasco county were reduced by the county court from 38 to 24, as a move for economy. Most of the precincts consolidated were in The Dalles. A saving of $200 per election year is anticipated as a result of the move.

A milk production average of 100.6 pounds a day from a Holstein cow in the dairy herd of the Eastern Oregon state hospital at Pendleton has caused officials of the institution to put the cow on an official test for championship records.
