Grass Valley School Notes

MARIETTA PERRY, EDITOR

Marietta Perry—Editor.

Two days of vacation seemed to prepare the volley ball girls for a victory over the Wasco Warriorettes last Friday night on the latter's own floor. It proved to be a very exciting game for the spectators. The teams were quite evenly matched but the Grass Valley girls due to superior team work squeaked out a victory in the second half. Wasco was leading in the half by five points but a change in the Grass Valley line-up seemed to work well. Cindy Bell acted as Captain of the Grass Valley team and Elma Huston for the Wasco team. The score at the end of the game was 25 to 23 in favor of the Grass Valley team. Their next game will be with Moro in the local gym, Friday, October 30.

The football boys journeyed to Moro Saturday afternoon where they changed a seeming defeat into a 6 to 6 deadlock. Neither side was able to score in the first half. Moro made a touchdown in the third quarter after a 50 yard march down the field during which a 15 yard pass and 15 yards from penalties helped to make their yardage. With the ball on Grass Valley's 3 yard line and 4 downs to go, the Tigers smothered three smashes at center before McKenney scored from the 6 inch mark. The Grass Valley team seemed to pep up when the Perry brothers replaced Vinton and Roth who were both injured. In the fourth quarter acting captain Ruggles behind well executed interference swept around the right end on a reverse play for a 20 yard gain and a touchdown. Neither team was able to convert the extra point and the score remained 6-6. In the remainder of the fourth quarter Grass Valley gained much yardage in mid-field on passes from Glenn Perry to Alley but was unable to punch the ball across for any further scores. The game attracted quite a few football fans from Grass Valley. This was the last game of the season for the Tigers.

The high school volley ball team defeated the town team in a practice game last Wednesday night. The "Sunshine" team defeated the grade school girls.

Those who were on the Honor Roll this six weeks were Willard Barnett, Erasmus Baker, Florence Schilling, Pearl Bell, Cindy Bell, Zela Ruggles, Taylor Baker, Dorothy Fairchild, Lois Russell, Lawrence Todd, Mildred Alley, Lila Fay Boies, Vivian Reynolds and Earle Shipley.

The Healthy Living class has started dissecting cats. One proved to be quite wild and succeeded in scratching Earl Perry's hand.

The Executive Council held a meeting in the office Tuesday morning.

The Student body took an intelligence test Tuesday morning.

Newcomer to Sherman county football circles, bucks the line. Grass Valley's ends: Roth, a short, stocky boy is fast and a sure tackler, and Alley, the tall one is a very good pass receiver. Perry, although ineligible because of age, played a part of the game and was the best of the ball carriers on the field.

But, Miller. There's a football player. When he tackles 'em they stay tackled; when he goes through the line he takes a man or even two men with him and don't forget that he can catch passes. It is easy for him to be where he is supposed to be on a pass play for he goes with a dash for the spot and is not to be thrown off his course by ordinary blocking. These lines seem to be good enough too for green kids. No team that has played here this year has made any consistent yardage through the line. The backfields need practice in carrying the ball and holding it.

MILDRED GINN WRITES

Narimbu's mother met us here and took us to see the bride. She was supposed to be no more than fourteen but looked quite mature though being tired may have caused her to appear older. She was dressed in a gold and red silk sari and decked with jewels.

There are Tamil people which accounts for the colored sari and also for the many out of town guests who had come from Narimbu's native place. We stayed in the women's quarters with the bride only a short time and then we had tea upstairs alone for they could not defile themselves to eat with us. The table had been set in English style and a butler who understood European ways had been in the room. The sandwiches were not so bad, caraway seeds spoiled the cake for me and the candies were quite tasty but oh my tea! It was sweetened with honey, had milk in it and was perfumed with rosewater and a fair amount of smoke. I swallowed most of my tea but when the butler was out of the room I exchanged plates with Win and she managed my cake for me. Going down stairs a servant met us at the foot and again ushered us in to the room where we had first met the host.

He was seated there before the table with a chair on either side of him and asked us to be seated. On the table before him was a silver tray containing rose water sprinklers, jasmine garlands, limes and a silver bowl of sandal wood ashes. A servant sprinkled us generously with rosewater and Narimbu placed the garlands about our necks and presented us with the limes and jasmine balls. It was our place I suppose to rub our heads with the ashes which is a custom at all Indian weddings, Hindu and Christian but we didn't do it. We then took our leave and rode home through the shandy with our garlands about our necks and so heavily scented with rosewater and jasmine that even the shandy smells couldn't penetrate. I forgot to say that we also presented Narimbu with lemons when we greeted him!

A nine foot python was caught outside our gate Saturday evening and the man brought it for us to see Sunday morning.

I was quite wicked in Sunday School this a. m. We are strict with the children regarding whispering and laughing. Today a new boy came in and his hair dress started me laughing. Win snickered to which postponed the regaining of my composure. The lower part was shayed and the top part was long and done up in a funny knot. Yet it wasn't such an unusual sight but it just happened to appeal to my sense of humor at that moment. The little boy who has proudly worn for the last two Sundays his English cut trousers and suspenders, with the latter on backwards is just as funny but received nothing but a smile and exchange of looks between Win and me. Then did I tell you about the little girl who attempted to trim her toe nails with her teeth during the class? She succeeded quite well too. It is their simple naturalness that is so funny while when they try to be funny its provoking. And some times this same simple naturalness is provoking, yet at other times very sweet. There are some darling babies and wee kiddies around here. Its hard to get a picture of them as they really are and at present neither Win nor I have a workable camera.

With love, Mildred.
