

STATE FAIR WILL BE CONTINUED THIS YEAR

Races and Horse Show To Be Eliminated in 75 H Fair

A committee of the State Board of Agriculture submitted to Governor Meier today plans for the operation of the State Fair without incurring an operating deficit. The law directs that the fair shall be held annually, and a storm of protest arose over the rumored possibility of the discontinuance of the fair.

At the regular meeting of the Board, a decision was reached:

(1) To hold a bigger and better fair without creating an operating deficit. To this end, the committee features that have been successful in other years and adding new features that are popular elsewhere. The operating budget adopted Saturday is less than one third of last year's receipts without even counting receipts from Races and Horseshow. Yet this budget includes what is probably the largest item for free attractions the fair has ever had. The board feels the public is entitled to something for the 50¢ admission and a study of other fairs indicates increased attendance resulting from giving the public more for their money. None of the economies effected will curtail exhibits or injure the fair itself, but will actually make the fair better and bigger.

(2) Program calls for elimination of free passes; reduce number of employees; reduce pay of employees; ask employees and all others to cooperate to see how much they can put into the fair and not how much they can take out of it. Salem has offered free police and fire protection; its Chamber of Commerce has offered to organize a publicity platoon to boost the fair through good will tours. etc. Individuals have offered services free; others offer to lend a hand in any capacity for expense money; members of families in state employment have offered their services free; building improvements will be omitted thru the lawn, flowers, shrubbery and roofs will be kept up. Gates at the grounds will be kept closed except during fair week to reduce expenses. Clubs, Granges, Communities, Cities, and Counties have offered to cooperate.

(3) There will be no night Horse Show, but there will be exhibits of breeding and draft horses.

(4) There will be no races. Other fairs are eliminating them as a losing venture.

(5) Losses on these two items were around $12,000 last year. The elimination of these two items will make possible daylight grandstand and night stadium attractions that are typically Western, that it would not be possible to bring to Oregon under ordinary conditions. The nature of these cannot be announced until contracts have been signed.

"Did you kill her?"

"Don't think so. Thash why I want to be locked up."

Paul R. Kelty Award!

This handsome silver loving cup, offered by Paul R. Kelty (insert), editor of the Portland Oregonian, will be awarded to the weekly newspaper in the state that, in the opinion of the judges, has shown the greatest editorial skill and produced the best editorial page during the year. The announcement of the winner will be made at the annual summer meeting of the Oregon State Editorial association, to be held in Portland July 14, 15, and 16. The University of Oregon chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, is supervising the contest, which will be held annually.

School of Journalism, University of Oregon, Eugene, (Special)—Editorial skill and judgment as displayed thru the editorial pages of the weekly news paper press of Oregon will be the basis on which a large silver cup will be presented for the first time this summer to the Oregon weekly newspaper considered by judges to be the best example of editorial craftsmanship.

Paul R. Kelty, editor of the Portland Oregonian, is the donor of the award, which will be made annually. Details of the contest are being conducted by Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity on the Oregon campus, which also makes an annual award to the best all-round weekly newspaper each year. The Kelty award will be presented at the annual summer meetings of the Oregon State Editorial association to be held this year on July 14, 15, and 16 at Portland.

SERVICE HEARING

bushels of wheat; the Erskine elevator holds 43,000 bushels; the Grass Valley elevator is for 80,000 bushels capacity and the Kent elevator will hold 50,000 bushels of wheat and that these elevators ordinarily handle from two to three times their capacity during the wheat season. This necessitates almost daily shipment due to varying grades of wheat and switching facilities must be provided by the railroad company or wheat movement is handicapped seriously.

The larger part of the evidence was introduced by the railroad company representatives who were present from the Portland office for the hearing. F. J. Betz acted as attorney for the O. W. and besides cross questioning the protestant's witnesses questioned those of his company.

S. Murray, chief engineer for the defendant, testified as to the physical structure of the country through which the branch line runs saying that there is grades of 3 1/2 per cent from Biggs to Shaniko and 2 per cent on the down trip. There are curves totaling 19 complete circles in the 70 miles of road. There are 62 bridges totaling 8468 lineal feet. It was his opinion that there would be less depreciation on these bridges if fewer trains were run.

The valuation of this branch of the railroad was given as slightly over $1,201,000 dollars according to the estimate of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

W. H. Guild, superintendent of operation, gave a resume of the train service at present in effect and told what the railroad company expected to give in case they were permitted to change. This will be a train that leaves Biggs at three o'clock Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings and goes through to Shaniko, leaves Shaniko at 7.45 each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening and goes to Biggs. In addition the company asks permission to run a motor truck from Grass Valley to Biggs leaving the former place at 9.15 each Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening and returning at six o'clock the following morning. This truck would carry freight, mail and express. On Saturday nights a truck would go from Grass Valley to Biggs carrying mail, the same as has been the case during most of the past year.

Operating expenses of the Shaniko branch were given as $17,812 for wages, $11,531 for fuel, $3,783 for locomotive repairs, $688 for repairs, $325 for water and $1,914 for engine house expense and for motor truck that operates at present $780, for a total of $36,832. To this must be added a station expense of $9,756, maintenance of way of $43,900 and taxes of $21,593 making a grand total of over $112,000 now required to operate this branch of the road.

Estimated savings if the less frequent service is installed amount to $9,082 being principally in wages and fuel expense.

J. C. Dodds, statistician for the rail road reported the revenue earned by this branch of the road at $43,154.20 during 1931 of which $42,030.20 came from freight. He gave testimony to show the decrease of ton mile freight handled since 1926. Figures were presented to show the deficit of the O. W. system which is figured to total $16,759,939.34 since its incorporation in 1910.

Elyell Eastman, commerce clerk for the railroad, introduced evidence to show the carload and less than carload shipments on this branch during the past year and told of the type of freight handled along this line.

The hearing was conducted by Herbert Hauser, secretary of the commission and by A. F. Harvey, rate expert, who came from Salem for that purpose. It was stated by Mr. Hauser after the hearing was concluded that the decision would be made promptly and that the commissioner's order would be filed changing or enforcing the service.
