Living Demands Care

Prevention of Accidents

Serious accidents in the home are very common and often result in fatalities. The National Safety Council reports that in a recent year there were 25,000 fatal accidents in American homes and that over 9,000 of those who died were children under 15 years of age; also that there were 5 million more fatal accidents in our homes. How safe is your home? Prevention is a thousand times better than cure and most of the accidents which occur at home could be prevened by a little care. Young children are very often the victims. Many of them lose their lives or suffer serious and painful injuries because of carelessness or negligence on the part of adult members of the family.

Here are a few suggestions for avoiding accidents in the home. If observed, they may prevent much suffering or even death and the heartaches and self reproach that comes to those who realize too late the dire consequences of carelessness.

1. Fires and Stoves. Burning and scalding are the principal causes of death from home accidents among children. Don't allow romping and skylarking near the kitchen stove. Don't put a kettle or sauce pan of boiling water at the front of the stove. Anyone passing may knock it over and get severely scalded.

2. Gas. Don't leave children alone in a room with a gas stove or where they can reach a gas jet. Accidentally or in play they may turn on the gas and be asphyxiated. Be sure rooms with gas are always well ventilated. Remember the ketile may boil over and put the gas out.

3. Electricity. Electric fans should be out of reach of little fingers. Always stop a fan before moving or adjusting it. Electric cords of toasters, reading lamps, irons, tec., should be renewed when they show signs of wear and tear. Never reach out from your bath and touch any electric connection; this is very dangerous.

4. If You Have to Climb up to cupboards, etc., get a good step ladder. Don't use boxes, barrels, rickety chairs or pile books or other objects on top of one another.

5. Be Careful Getting In and Out of the Bath Tub. Don't leave a cake of soap in the bath or you may step on it and have a severe fall. Spread a bath towel or mat on the bottom of the tub. A rubber mat in the tub makes it safer.

6. Young Children Love to Put Things in Their Mouths. Begin early to train them not to do this. If you do see a child with a marble or some other small thing in his mouth, don't shout at him. You may startle him so that he will swallow it.

MIDSUMMER VOGUE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It is difficult to conceive of anything more charming for midsummer wear than this dainty frock of white organdie which is so delightfully cool looking and which is so artfully patterned with delicate durene embroidery. The simple jumper bodice is beautifully worked about its edges with cut-out embroidery which gives it an exclusive air of fine workmanship. The leghorn hat tells a story of wide brims such as are gracing the most fashionable garden-party scenes and formal summer fete.

Middies Limber Up Their Football Legs

More than one hundred and fifty midshipmen answered the call for the first fall football practice at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. The photo shows a group of them indulging in the first kicking practice of the season.
