SELL IT

For years the farmers have been saying, publicly and in private conversation that the market for their products that are produced in such quantities...

The plan that has been extolled as probably the most likely to do this is some method of moving enough of the wheat grown in the United States to foreign markets at the world price and then demand a fair return on what is consumed at home.

Now the farmers have a chance to display the courage of their convictions. There is an opportunity to sell at least a quarter of the wheat of the northwest states to China which will leave but little more than local requirements in this territory.

Therefore the Farmer's National comes to the farmers themselves, for they still have the 1932 crop of northwest wheat, although the bankers are interested in it too.

At present the price of American wheat is a little over seven cents higher than world wheat which makes it impossible to sell to foreign countries without offering credit or other inducements to make a sale.

For years the Chicago price has been an average of 16 1/2 cents below Liverpool. Lately it climbed to a cent and a half above. What would it mean to the farmer now holding wheat worth between 38 and 40 cents, if number one was sold only for the world market at a price 18 cents below the present.

Yet, unless the surplus wheat of the country can be moved out we will eventually have to sell it on the Liverpool market.

Practically every banker interested in wheat farming as an investment is in favor of the deal. The farmer who is acquainted with the proposition is in favor of it.

Here is a chance for the farmers to make a practical application of the theory of selling their surplus abroad in order to raise the domestic price. They should not let it slip by.

Praise to Meier and Frank for the series of advertisements on Oregon and the fine window presented during the Legion convention.

We will vote for the man for president who is great enough to keep the public's mind off the world series ball games.

It's a good thing the date for filing for office in Portland was not extended. Everyone would have been in it in another couple of weeks.

Congressmen are reported thrown out of their jobs because they hired members of their families. Well, they would have been thrown out of the families if they hadn't.

Should release from the penitentiary be considered a pardon these days or increased sentence?

Get out the drills, farmers, it always rains sometime during the state fair.
