The Wasco Methodist church is taking three whole weeks for their fall rally and emphasis on religious education. The purpose is that in this time some special rally may be had for every age and department in the church.

The Church School Board met Monday of this week and will meet again at 7:30 next Monday night. This body is planning the starting of some new classes in the church school and is planning methods of increased attendance in classes already established.

The church school hour was set at 10:00 rather than at 10:15. Please notice this change in time.

A story and game hour for the junior age is being arranged for Saturday afternoon, October 15, by a committee appointed by the superintendent.

The first accredited meeting of the Leadership Training class was held Monday night at the parsonage. A total of eleven are now enrolled. Next Monday night is the latest date possible to register.

Our new choir can also be counted as a special feature of our fall rally. They met for practice Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Scott.

The Ladies Aid held a "Let's Be Young" party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. McKee with Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Proudfoot as joint hostesses.

The regular meeting of the official Board will be held Wednesday night, October 12, at 7:00. This is to be a pot luck dinner in the basement of the church. The evening will be divided between business, study, and fun. Further plans and programs for our rally will be arranged at that time.

The Epworth League began with its rally in the form of an "Automobile" party Friday night, September 30. The attendance Sunday night, October 2, was so large that the group was divided according to age and an Intermediate League organized. Both groups nominated officers to be elected Sunday night. The Senior League completed their voting on the topics to be used for the year.

Dr. Schaffer Give His Views of Consolidation

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles setting forth the views of Dr. Joseph Schaffer, superintendent of the state historical society of Wisconsin and former professor at the University of Oregon, as expressed in a letter to Hector Macpherson, promoter of the Zorn-Macpherson school moving bill, who had written Schaffer for his opinion of the proposed legislation.)

Some Oregonians will recall my interest in rural school teaching. When the Oregon Norman School was about to be reopened—after being discontinued for several years—I projected a plan for making it distinctively a training school for rural teachers. The reason was that the rural schools had been shamefully neglected; that most of them were obliged to put up with teachers who were half trained, youthful girls, mostly from city high schools, who looked upon a country school as a mere stepping stone toward further training and ultimately—unless they married—city employment. The influence of such teachers could not strengthen and enrich farm life, as rural teaching ought to do; rather it tolled farm boys and girls away from the farms to the towns.

My plan, possibly too drastic, was

Designers Are in a Mood for Capes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ready for a shopping tour. Brown and white print fashions her jacket dress, which takes on a most convincing note of chic in that it flaunts a little print-lined brown velvet cape with a velvet belt to match. By the way, it is worth while to keep tabs of the many attractive velvet "sets" which complement the new costumes. It is very stylish to wear a girle or belt of velvet to match one's hat. Charming three-pieces are also made up of cheapeau, cape-wrap and girle, all of the same material, preferably velvet.

As to evening capes there is no end to the procession. The prettily frivolous little ruffled fancy cape pictured in the center is entirely of taffeta silk. There is just enough protection about it to serve for a midsummer evening, and as to "looks" it is without doubt a prize-winning number. No one who knows how to sew ought to be without one of these pretty shoulder wraps, for it's no trick at all to make one out of a yard or so of silk.

At fashionable midnight gatherings one sees such beguiling capes as these—a ruby red velvet model with a single scarf end thrown over the right shoulder; white satin made circular-cut and bordered with white ostrich; pink taffeta outlined with a ruffling of the same; white transparent velvet worked with rhinestones; many of white ermine.

Autumn days will witness bevy of novel fur capes for detachable or rather separate fur pieces will be played up in great fashion during the succeeding months.

NOT to be cape-conscious is not to know fashion as it is at this very moment and as it will be this coming fall and winter. Everything from suits to evening gowns is being caped in one way or another. If the cape is not an actual part of the dress, as it is in so many instances, then it is sure to be one of those cunning little separate affairs made of velvet or silk or lace, or "what have you," for designers are conjuring these graceful shoulder out of most any medium.

These versatile capes are adding a genuine note of interest to the new modes for they offer unlimited possibilities in the field of design. Whether it be for the sports outfit or the afternoon costume or for wear during the formal evening hour the cape motif is made to lend itself to the mood and the occasion.

At all evening galas in Paris capes galore are to be seen, some half-jacket and some half-scarf and others just capes pure and simple. And then there's Hollywood, our own mecca toward which all eyes turn to see fashions at their best. There is no doubt about the reign of the cape vogue in that style center. Most any day you are apt to meet pretty Rochelle Hudson, she of the smiling countenance who is waving such a joyous salute in her youthful looking three-piece costume, with its jaunty little cape and its printed blouse, its colorful belt and tie.

And there's Julia Hayden a bit further on, tastefully gowned as the illustration to the right reveals her, all of the contemplated new university than to do the more humble work of training teachers of farm children in the district schools. It would soon seek to grant higher degrees also, and, in any event, it would compete with the university and the several colleges of the state for undergraduate students.

Ted Rainwater, he of the marcel wave, devotee of the dance, and past master in the subtle technique thereof met up with a new ally the other evening over at Mellow Moon. "I asked to see her home," says Ted

NOT CONSOLIDATION ... but a COSTLY EXPANSION!

The ZORN-MACPHERSON SCHOOL "JUGGLING" BILL AT TAXPAYERS' EXPENSE—ESTABLISHES 4 NEW SCHOOLS, CREATES 2 NEW TYPES OF SCHOOLS—BOTH UNTRIED AND UNNEEDED.

Under the guise of economy, unknown interests propose this extravagant building and wrecking program, which claims to be a consolidation of Oregon's higher educational system. There are five campuses now, and if this bill is approved, there will still be five campuses—after a raid has been made on the 12,000,000 money! The following facts will enable every taxpayer to prevent this experiment which endangers our higher educational system and results in a tremendous financial outlay by taxpayers.

4 New Schools Established

This bill actually creates 4 NEW schools—a junior college at La Grande and Ashland; a law school at Salem; and a teachers' college at Eugene. In addition, it "junks" the Monmouth Normal School, valued at $700,000, and uses but one-third of the facilities of the University at Eugene. This disarrangement will result in a tremendous financial outlay by taxpayers for additional NEW schools, NEW departments, NEW courses and NEW equipment. There are five campuses now. If this bill is approved there will still be five campuses; but, in addition, the taxpayers will be forced to erect new housing facilities for the University law school and library at Salem; provide NEW buildings and dormitories to accommodate the greatly increased student body poured onto the Corvallis campus; and equip two NEW junior colleges and a teachers' college with new and costly facilities for conducting a NEW and untried system.

2 New Types of Schools Proposed

Two NEW TYPES of schools are created by this bill—two junior colleges and a teachers' college—both untried and unneeded in Oregon. To educate students for junior standing in technical and scientific college courses, requires expensive laboratories and equipment, thus tripling the same facilities now maintained at the University and State College. The passing of this bill establishes the principle of STATE SUPPORT TAX for all or any junior colleges. Every town in the State of Oregon will then have the right to demand a junior college! Every legislative session will invite log-rolling bills for appropriations for new junior colleges in ambitious localities. Taxpayers of this state are asked to vote on this costly junior and teachers' college experiment with every expenditure made at their expense.

In addition, this bill claims a saving of $1,000,000 per year in taxes, BUT DOES NOT ACTUALLY REDUCE OREGON'S BASIC STATE TAX for higher education by a SINGLE PENNY. You will pay the same tax for state schools as you do now if this bill is approved.
