

EUROPE NOT BUYING AMERICAN WHEAT

WHEAT: The reduced European demand for foreign wheat remains the outstanding feature in the general wheat market situation. World shipments during August and September were only over a little over one-half as large as for the corresponding period during the past two seasons and reflect the unusually large crops in Germany, France, Italy and Spain. Canada is at present furnishing the bulk of the world's export and the pressure of Canadian offerings has been principally responsible for recent declines. Receipts during the week at the principal Canadian terminals totaled 12,236 cars and prices at Winnipeg declined to the lowest point of the season, with No. 1 Manitoba Northern quoted September 30, at 4 5/8 cents per bushel in United States currency. The same grade was quoted at Vancouver at 45 cents and FOB New York at 54 1/2 cents.

Pacific Coast markets remained quiet but futures at Portland did not follow fluctuations at Chicago. The September delivery closed at Portland September 30th at 1 1/3 cents higher than a week ago while the December and May deliveries were 1/2 to 1 cent lower. The strength in the September delivery reflected the tight cash situation. Country marketings continued relatively light, receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals totaling only 616 cars for the week compared with 1,148 cars for the corresponding week last year. In addition to the car receipts 9,000 bushels were received at Portland by river boat and 5,600 bushels by truck. Domestic mills provided the principal outlet since no new export business was reported. Local prices continued above Canadian and Australian offerings both in the Orient and Europe. Three cargoes of Canadian wheat were reported sold at Vancouver to Shanghai during the week with some business each day to the United Kingdom.

WORLD WHEAT STOCKS REPORTED LARGER

The world wheat market is expected to be still under the influence of large stocks of wheat when wheat planted this fall is being marketed, according to the fall wheat outlook report released by the Oregon Agricultural extension service. "Improvement in the world wheat market situation seems to depend mostly upon increasing demand when economic conditions improve and as population gradually increases," the report says. The wheat industry has been feeling the effects of a downward trend in prices since 1925. The farm price of wheat in this country has declined to 44 percent of the pre-war average. The downward price trend was accompanied by increasing world wheat production and larger carry-over supplies, and was accentuated by the sharp decrease in consumer incomes and purchasing power since 1929. Considering both production and carryover, the report says, world supplies of wheat for the 1932-33 marketing season are approximately the same as during the previous season. World production this year is expected to be fully as large as last year. Stocks in Russia and the

PRINTED CHIFFON, CREPES POPULAR

New Broken Stripes on Marocain Is Latest.

Printed chiffons and crepes are as popular as ever, and designers are learning danger points. We no longer see chiffons printed in stripes which, after all, do not seem to harmonize with the chiffon texture. A new broken stripe on marocain is very popular. But even the least severe prints are being made very simply. One very pretty floral design is being made up in many models, in black on white, white on black, or, very popular combination of the moment, cocoa-beige on lighter brown. Many dresses show these patterned materials as the sleeves and cowl front of the ever-present pinaflore dress. This style is too useful and becoming to die out quickly. It is good under or without coats. It can be varied by the wearing of different sleeves, and it is gentle to the not quite perfect figure. It would be a trifle longer than the very tailored walking dress, but shorter by several inches than the afternoon frock of all-chiffon.

Indoor Rodeo Feature of Exposition

"Midnight," world-famous "bucker" who has never been ridden — unless much-disputed ride of Frank Studnick, Oregon cowboy, Pendleton, 1931, is conceded — with rest of McCarty-Elliott outfit will furnish indoor rodeo thrills at Pacific International, Portland, October 15-22.

A thrilling indoor rodeo will be the feature of this year's Pacific International Livestock Exposition to be held in Portland, Oregon, October 15-22 inclusive — the McCarty-Elliott outfit with its full string of famous bucking horses and twenty-five leading buckaroos and women riders of the country, of world championship variety. The rodeo features will be open to the world with approximately $10,000 in prize money. This is the same rodeo with the famous "Midnight" that doubled the receipts this year at the Denver Western Stock Show and the Fort Worth Stock Show, and held the spotlights at the Omaha Assarben, the Cheyenne Frontier Days, and at Deadwood, South Dakota. It will be featured at eight matinee and seven evening performances, giving close-up thrills that will pack the reserved seats. In addition to the rodeo the arena events will include the six-hand heavy draft teams, local riding academy exhibitions and the daily parade of winning animal exhibits. According to the president, T. B. Wilcox, Jr., the exposition as a whole will be more complete this year than in the past. Housed under one immense roof eleven acres in extent will be the usual attractive Industrial Exhibits, Dairy and Land Products Show, Beef and Dairy Cattle Show, Sheep Show; shows of hogs, goats, poultry, rabbits and dogs; and exhibits of wild life, fish and game. In many of these divisions interesting new breeds and types will be exhibited. Premiums totaling $75,000, furnished by state, county and breeders' associations, will go to this year's winners.

Members of the Boys' and Girls 4-H and Smith-Hughes Vocational Education Clubs are preparing for unusually fine exhibits. Reduced fares to Portland for the Exposition, October 15-22, have been announced by all railroads.

Speed Reduces Gas Mileage Says Shelton

Under the above title, J. E. Shelton, Manager for the Oregon State Motor Association, prints some interesting information of tremendous import to every motorist, in the current issue of the Oregon Motorist, official publication of the Association. The Motorist states that studies recently made by carburetor experts show that not only does high speed increase the danger ratio to car and driver but that gasoline cost alone is three times as great at 70 miles an hour as it is at 20. The table of miles per gallon at different speeds follows:

Miles per hour	Miles per gallon
20	20
30	19.3
40	18
50	15.4
60	12.6
70	7

In these days of so called depression and lack of ready cash these figures may make us stop and think when the toll of accidents, injuries and deaths do not even cause us to hesitate.

We may be willing to take our chances and gamble with the possibility of an accident due to fast driving but the certainty of economic loss through increased cost of fast driving is certainly impressive.

In collections from motor vehicle tax dealers, both underpayments and overpayments were discovered in the audit of the gasoline companies' books. The additional amount resulting to the state from this phase of auditing activity is $30,193.91. Investigations of the accounts of motor transport companies have brought in additional mileage fees of $32,922.78 and additional license fees of $1,111.25, or a total gain to the state of $34,034.08. of the tomato, and if left in may not be cooked thoroughly, resulting in a spoiled product. Tomato juice may be made in the winter time from canned tomatoes or may be made now and canned. To can tomato juice, wash the tomatoes well, cut them in sections, add a small quantity of water. Boil them until soft, being careful not to allow them to burn. Put through a sieve to remove seeds and skins, then add one teaspoon of salt to each quart. Bring to boil, pour into containers and process in hot water bath for 20 minutes.

J'ever See a Pack Rat?
Dean Peavy and Sammy Miller made a trek through central Oregon recently. After a hearty dinner at a well known Bend cafe the dean came alarmed at the antics of his protegee. "What's the big idea, Sam, why on earth are you washing your spoon in your finger bowl?" "Tush, tush," replied Sammy. "Do you suppose I want to get egg all over my pocket?"
