Town Talk

Ross Ornduff, one time cashier of the bank here, was in town for a short time Monday afternoon from his home near The Dalles.

Sergeant Frank Grimm of the state police was here Wednesday afternoon while on his search for the missing ex-judge Marsh of Pendleton who disappeared Monday evening.

Gene McMillan of Portland was a Moro visitor Tuesday afternoon. Mr. McMillan formerly lived between here and Wasco.

W. F. Jackson is making a final swing around the circle of Gilliam and Wheeler counties in the interest of his senatorial campaign.

B. L. Fleck and son were here last week end from Redmond to visit Mr. Fleck's mother, who is ill here.

Mrs. Ellen Fleck is again very low at the home of Mrs. Margaret Peetz. Miss Cassie Holmes is attending her.

The little Osborn baby is home again after a minor operation at the hospital in The Dalles.

Art and Henry Barnum were in Portland at the stock show last week and Art succeeded in disposing of a couple of white face bulls to a man wishing to improve his herd.

Mrs. Melvin Schadewitz and her mother, Mrs. O. A. Ramsey returned this week from Gilliam county where they have been visiting.

Mrs. Bryant announces that President Hoover may be heard over the radio on Friday night October 28th at 5:30 p. m. on Monday at 6:00 and on Tuesday night at 5:30.

Nearly everyone is seeding this week except those who have already finished the job.

Floyd Platt is planning on moving to town for the winter and will be found next week in the Hastings house.

Stanley Reavis returned from the hills back of Heppner this week looking brown and well conditioned but without a single taste of deer meat.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bond and two sons, Maynard and Horace, from Cundisfai, Alberta, stayed Monday night with R. P. Brisbane and family. Mrs. Bond is a relative of Mr. Brisbane.

A political argument may be heard almost any place about the streets these bright days. Some folks express a positive opinion, others doubtful and some say absolutely nothing leaving you to form your own conclusions.

MORO SCHOOL NOTES
Gordon Fraser, editor.

No volley ball game was scheduled for last week but this Friday the Moro team will meet the Grass Valley combination. As neither team has been defeated thus far his promises to be a real battle. The game will be played on the Moro floor.

Class officers were elected in the freshman class, Tuesday. Those elected were as follows: President, Austin Foss; vice president, Lloyd Henrichs; secretary-treasurer, Dorothy Fraser; sergeant-at-arms, Wayne Thompson.

Saturday evening the Senior class gave an invitational dance in the school gymnasium. Something new and different in the line of dancing was sponsored by Mrs. Nahouse, making a very enjoyable evening for all. Mr. and Mrs. Nahouse; Mr. and Mrs. Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. Peetz acted as patrons and patronesses.

There has been considerable interest in the Moro girls stunt preparation for presentation at the Wasco Girls' Frolic. In fact, so much interest that the girls will present their stunts to the student body, Thursday in assembly.

Wednesday in an assembly, the Behnke-Walker business college, of Portland, gave an excellent typing demonstration for our high school. Miss English demonstrated how she could type perfectly at the rate of 220 words per minute. After her demonstration she went to the typing class and gave suggestions for speed and accuracy.

The grades for the first six weeks have been submitted. In the majority of cases students have good average. A very few have failing work and very few have outstanding work.

Following is a short list of grade school pupils who have achieved the honor roll for the first six weeks period: Dorothy Mas Miller, Betty Templeton, Irene Searcy, Howard Conlee, Helen Strong.

High School Honor Roll. Maxine Henrichs, Dorothy McRea, Leora Peetz, Flora Williams, Dorothy Fraser, Anita Kenny, Doris Thompson.

Note that the girls walked away with the scholastic honors.

Hot Bread For Winter

During the cool days of early autumn we are tempted to include hot breads in our menus. Although much has been said about serving hot breads they do have their place in the diet. Molasses and whole wheat flours are good sources of iron and using them in hot breads is a very good way to help supply this necessary mineral to the diet.

Hot breads, which are so fresh or insufficiently baked that the interior makes a sticky, doughy mass when chewed are hard to digest and should be avoided. Hot breads are not necessarily indigestible but should be baked until the interior is dry and crumbly. Also they should be chewed thoroughly.

The chief objection to serving hot breads is the tendency to over eating and the affects of this with any one type of food to the extent of taking restricted amounts of others is usually disastrous. In order to balance a meal when hot bread is served include as much milk, fruit and vegetables as possible. Any of the following hot bread recipes will be sure to tempt the appetites of your family.

Boston Brown Bread
One cup Graham flour

One cup corn meal
One cup rye flour
Two and one-fourth teaspoon soda
One teaspoon salt
Three-fourths cup sorghum
Two cups thick buttermilk
One half cup each chopped dates and raisins
One tablespoon flour.

Measure dry ingredients and mix thoroughly with a spoon, then sift together twice. Any bran remaining in the sifter should be returned to the sifter material. Combine molasses and milk and stir into dry ingredients. Beat until mixture is smooth, but no longer. Add fruit that is dredged with a tablespoon of flour, and stir just enough to distribute. Pour mixture into cylindrical molds, that have been well buttered. Pound baking powder make excellent molds. Cover molds with the lids which should be perforated. Steam for 1 1/2 hours. Some people prefer to set this bread in a slow oven (300 F) for about twenty minutes to dry out and form a good crust.

Ginger Bread
One cup thick buttermilk
One and three-fourths teaspoons soda
One cup molasses
Four tablespoons melted butter
Two and one-third cups pastry flour
Two teaspoon ground ginger
Put buttermilk into mixing bowl and add soda. Stir until soda is dissolved, then add molasses and again stir to blend the ingredients. Have flour and ginger sifted together. Add the flour to the milk mixture and stir until batter is smooth. Last add the melted butter and beat until smooth. Pour into buttered muffin pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 F) for about twenty five minutes or until gingerbread just begins to pull away from tins. This is best served warm. Apple sauce is a delicious accompaniment.

Gasoline Refunds

Show Large Gain

A substantial growth in the number of refunds made against the state motor vehicle fuel tax is shown in a recent analysis of refund claims filed with the refund division of the secretary of state's office. The survey revealed that 21.4 percent more money was returned to refund applicants last year as compared with 1930 although revenue from the fuel tax increased but 3.7 percent.

Refunds last year were $748,902.47 or $160,384.77 higher than the $588,517.70 in tax rebates made the previous year. Refund claims last year numbered 22,224 as compared with 17,101 in 1930, an increase of 5,123 claims.

The growth in refund disbursements is reflected again in 1932, the first seven months of the current year showing $87,522.56 more refunds than those made for the same period a year ago. Revenue from the fuel taxes is $355,174.92 less for the first seven months period this year than for a similar period in 1931.

One reason for the increased number of claims is suggested by Secretary of State Hal E. Hoss, who points out that those eligible for the refunding privilege are making more frequent claims of late than in the past. A few years ago, the farmers kept their invoices and made claims once or twice a year while now they make application more regularly, Hoss brought out.

Refunds of four cents a gallon on gasoline and three cents on distillate are allowed by the state to individuals making affidavit showing that the fuel was used for purposes other than in motor vehicles operated on public roads. To obtain a gasoline or distillate refund, the applicant must accompany his claim with the invoices of purchase and specify the use to which the fuel was put. All claims are to be made within one year of the date of purchase of the fuel.

Grass Valley Folks To Have Party

Grass Valley is going to have a big free community get together on Halloween at 8 o'clock Monday at the Pavilion. It is a Hard Times Party. Come dressed in your oldest clothes. Dancing by "Radio." Cards for those who prefer them. A program of sorts for all. Come everybody and bring your doughnuts, as cider and sinkers are the feed.

HELP WANTED

Oregon citizens are on the brink of ruin, facing the bitter prospect of losing properties by tax confiscation. With a high-powered taxing machine, designed for more than the traffic will stand, the tax boosters have speeded along, without effective control. They are now on the edge of the ditch.

Talk of tax strikes is heard, but far more serious is the utter inability of property owners to pay their taxes. Many governmental units, by reason of tax delinquencies, are on the verge of bankruptcy.

Fortunately, the opportunity is at hand for clear thinking citizens to take control and direct a safer course. Two constructive measures now on the ballot will insure efficient driving of the tax machine and a slower gait.

These measures embody the improved Oregon plan of tax and debt supervision and control—the best plan ever presented in any state. They will secure very substantial reductions in the property tax load and thereby promote better government.

They will definitely separate tax levying from tax spending powers.

They will provide effective limitations and control of taxes and indebtedness, but positively will not disturb the existing 6 percent limitation nor lift the lid of any debt restriction now fixed by constitutional provision.

They will preserve the true substance of home rule in taxation, distinguished from the empty form of that great principle as it has been perverted by tax boosters to their own selfish purposes.

Voters, the appeal is to you to help yourselves and your fellow citizens, to save Oregon property owners from impending ruin and your governments from fiscal chaos by voting:
