Town Talk

Mrs. Tom Fraser spent a few days in Portland the first of the week.

R. W. Pinkerton was called to Kent, Wash. Thanksgiving day to attend the funeral of his brother, S. J. Pinkerton. Mrs. Donald McDermid, a daughter of the deceased, accompanied Mr. Pinkerton to Kent.

Lyman Baker and family of Seattle spent Friday and Saturday with Mr. Baker's brother Otis and family.

Sheriff Chrisman and wife were in Arlington on Thanksgiving day as guests of their daughter and family.

Harry Pinkerton and L. L. Peetz drove to Wasco county Wednesday to visit the flour mill above Tygh Valley.

Wily Knighten and family were in Portland over the holiday with Mrs. Knighten's family.

Marjorie Kunsman was here on Thanksgiving day from La Grande where she is attending normal school.

Charles Webb left Saturday having finished his work here at the experiment station.

Arthur Bucholtz returned Wednesday from a short business trip to Portland.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spurling an 8 and a half pound girl in Portland Sunday morning.

Mrs. Collis Moore and son are visiting in Tacoma, Wash. They left last week accompanied as far as Portland by Collis who returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Osborn left for Portland Saturday for a short visit with Mr. Osborn's parents.

Carl McKean was a visitor in Portland the first of the week, making the trip with his brother, R. H. and Elwood McPherson of Wasco.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnum entertained a group of friends last Friday evening. That date happened to be the seventh wedding anniversary of the host and hostess.

R. J. Ginn is recovering from his attack of pneumonia and Miss Cassie Holmes has returned to Grass Valley.

E. K. Guinan has moved to the L. L. Peetz home where he will live instead of staying at the hotel.

Robert Rohde was admitted to citizenship in the United States at the last meeting of the circuit court here.

Miss Edith Johnson was at her place in the school room again Monday morning after being absent a few days because of illness.

Babe Douma and wife had as Thanksgiving guests, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown of Shaniko. Mrs. Brown is a sister of Mr. Douma.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Neal, of The Dalles entertained Thanksgiving for E. S. Ruggles and daughter, Esther from Prineville, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bell, of The Dalles, Mrs. Lois McFarlane, from Salem, Bernice Dillinger and daughters, Maxine and Bernice.

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Thompson drove to Portland last week to spend the holiday with Mrs. Thompson's father, J. A. Thompson.

The streets of Moro show more life today than for several months past as farmers tote their bed rolls, their mess kits and supplies around looking for a truck to haul them over to the wheat league meeting.

The next show to be presented at the Legion theatre will be entitled, "Safe in Hell" which features Dorothy Mackail in a drama well adapted to show off the histrionic abilities of that personable young lady of the silver screen. Wednesday night, December 7th is the date of her appearance.

MORO SCHOOL NOTES
Gordon Fraser, editor.

One more game and the volley ball season will be over for the Moro team. This game is very important however, and a loss to Grass Valley would mean that the perfect record of the Moro team would be marred and another game would have to be played to definitely decide the county championship. This game will be played on the Grass Valley floor. This will give them a slight advantage but it may not be enough to stop the smoothly functioning Moro aggregation. A close, hard fought battle is expected in which either team may prove victorious.

Prospects are good for a successful basketball season with six lettermen from last year's squad and some other prospects from last year returning.

The Social Problem class has become envious of the repute of the Commercial Geography classes debaters and have challenged them to a debate. However, nothing definite has been settled as yet but a debate will probably be held in the near future between the pick of the two classes' debaters.

Report cards will be passed out Monday. One will be able to compare his work of the second six-weeks with that of the first, determining whether or not he has improved.

Dangers of Influenza Told By Board
Influenza is a highly communicable disease. It comes on suddenly with a fever lasting 3 days. There is a feeling of great depression and a marked lowering of physical vigor. Bronchitis and pneumonia may rapidly follow, especially when the victim attempts to return to his work too early. Failure to give in to so short an illness and the natural tendency of the vigorous male to "fight it off" when indisposed undoubtedly accounts for the fact that while more females are attacked, the death rate is usually higher among males.

Influenza spares neither age nor sex, class nor race. The strong and the weak, the rich and poor are apparently equal in susceptibility. Influenza occurs at all seasons but it has a decided preference for cold weather. World-wide epidemics occur in irregular cycles.

As with so many serious communicable diseases the first symptoms are those of a common cold. In influenza, however, there is much greater degrees of debility and depression. Many who have the disease in a mild form do not go to bed but continue to mingle with their fellow men and this contributes largely to its spread.

Even in the simple form of influenza there is usually a feeling of chilliness and of weakness; there is a rapid rise of temperature to about 103 or 104 degrees; and there may be some cough, some hoarseness and soreness of throat. Less often nausea, vomiting and diarrhea accompany the attack or it may begin with a sharp nosebleed.

The most serious complication is pneumonia, which may develop in a few days after the onset. Other complications are sinusitis, empyema, tonsillitis, pulmonary edema, pneumothorax and a persistent cough which may last for months. Simple uncomplicated cases of influenza do not die.

Influenza deaths in Oregon 1922 to 1931 were as follows:

Year	Deaths	Year	Deaths
1922	387	1927	263

1923 241 1928 363
1924 123 1929 365
1925 206 1930 204
1926 228 1931 202

People die of influenza in Oregon in all seasons but the winter and early spring months are particularly dangerous. The signs and symptoms of a cold are always danger signals, especially when influenza is prevalent. At this time every suddenly acquired cold should be regarded with suspicion and a physician consulted at once. Avoidance of contact is the best prevention. There is no known medical means of prevention. If a susceptible person comes in contact with influenza he almost invariably contracts the disease.

Live out doors as much as possible and avoid crowded places. Wear clothing suitable to the weather and avoid dissipation of any kind. Simple nourishing food is the most healthful. Wash the hands frequently, particularly before eating. If you have influenza, however mild, go to bed and stay there until your physician says it is safe to arise. Remember that the exhaustion from influenza is usually out of proportion to the mildness of the symptoms, and great care must be taken to prevent injury to the vital organs.

Steiwes Favors Policy Continued As Present
Declaring that Oregon's future depends on its ability to keep its agriculture abreast of scientific developments in order to compete with other regions, Senator Frederick Steiwer has expressed a determination to fight hard if necessary to prevent the crippling of the cooperative federal-state research work now underway at Oregon State college experiment station.

Senator Steiwer recently inspected this work at the experiment station before returning to Washington for the opening of the short session of Congress. He said he was impressed with the importance and quality of the work carried on there.

Many problems that are of more than state importance are being investigated in Oregon through a cooperative arrangement whereby the federal department of agriculture furnishes the trained specialists and the college supplies equipment, land and laboratory space. It was this work that Senator Steiwer viewed personally.
