Town Talk

T. Leland Brown, district attorney for Wasco county was here last week on legal business with Maurice Snook, of the Shell Oil Co. Mr. Brown has recently entered into partnership with his father, ex-judge George Brown of the supreme court.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cothran Friday evening, January 6th, in honor of Miss Grace Cothran and Miss Helen Searcy.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Jess Landry and son, Mr. and Mrs. Vc Barr and son, Charles Ruggles and Orville Hockman. Refreshments consisting of cake and ice cream were served at midnight.

Through the courtesy of Senator J. P. Yates this paper will receive copies of bills and resolutions introduced into the Oregon legislature. These will be kept on file at this office where they may be studied by any interested persons.

W. C. Bush, an examiner of operators and chauffeurs will be at the court house in Moro, Wednesday, January 18th. He is taking the place of C. M. Bently who usually examines Sherman county's car drivers.

Fred Pickett left in the early hours of Wednesday for Portland on a little business trip.

A tire lock made by Oakes has been left at this office by the finder and a pack of pad lock keys have been left here also. The owner may call and get his property.

W. F. Jackson and wife were in Portland over the week end. Mr. Jackson making the trip to attend the annual Jackson day dinner of the Democratic faithful. He describes it as a large and successful event.

Vernon Flatt and L. L. Peetz were in Wasco county Tuesday after a load of wood.

Walter May was making one of his regular road trips the first of the week.

Alarge part of the influenza victims in this community have recovered from their illness enough to be about their daily tasks even if they do not have their customary pep as yet.

Arthur B. Christensen was here Wednesday on business for the Cascade Tractor Company. Art lives in The Dalles now and he doesn't come up very often to shake hands with his friends so he enjoys it more when the opportunity arises.

Arthur Smith was up from The Dalles the first of the week to look things over for a few hours.

We have received a copy of the Los Angeles Times' Mid-Winter number as a gift from Mrs. Faith Needham who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Ginn here. The Times is the paper that put out the fiftieth anniversary number that told the history of the town in pictures.

Grass Valley is giving a dance next Friday night, January 20th. It is safe to say that Grass Valley is giving this dance because almost every one in the town is interested in the success of the affair. It will be the annual mid-winter charity ball that has heretofore attracted so much attention. The receipts are all used for charitable purposes, the entertainment is always good and all comers are assured of having a good time.

MORO SCHOOL NOTES
 Gordon Fraser, editor.

In the week end basketball games played by Moro teams they emerged losers in both games Friday and winners in both Saturday evening.

The Moro teams seemed unable to function properly at Grass Valley so consequently suffered defeat.

The girls teams fared better than the boys losing by a score of 19 to 13. Although outplayed during the first half they came back from the intermission fighting and soon tied the score. In the final minutes Grass Valley counted three times and thus won the game.

The boys game was rather reggedly played although occasional flashes of form was shown by both teams. Grass Valley was victorious by a 27 to 11 count.

Saturday evening the Moro girls' team defeated Kent 25 to 24. The close score resulted from a thrilling rally on the part of Kent in the closing minutes which put them in the lead for a short time but the hopes of a Kent victory vanished as a Moro forward followed up a foul shot to give Moro their advantage.

Working smoothly during the larger part of the game the boys conquered the Kent team 22 to 19. In the final quarter Moro passes began sailing wildly in every direction thru which the Kent team scored a large part of their points.

Moro will meet The Dalles quintet on the home floor Saturday evening. The second game of the evening will be between the Moro and Grass Valley town teams.

As semester examinations are but a short time ahead students may be seen studying more industriously than usual.

Members of the Optimist staff are busily preparing for the publication Friday. Leora Peetz, the editor, is

- 5. Discovery of life history and control of the codling moth under Oregon conditions. This pioneer work by Dean A. B. Cordley was forerunner of subsequent disease and pest control work that makes commercial fruit growing possible.
- 6. Development of the Oregon small seed industry through introduction of new forage crops. The industry is based largely on 20 new introductions by the station.
- 7. Improvement of old summer fallow methods in eastern Oregon. This improved method is credited with increasing yields about six bushels per acre.
- 8. Control of liver flukes in sheep and goats. The station found the snail alternate hosts of the flukes and devised means of eradicating them.
- 9. Discovery of the value of sulfur as a fertilizer. On alfalfa and other legumes on many Oregon soils hay yields were increased a ton or more per acre.

10. Discovery of a new and simple method of fowl pox control. A new system of vaccination makes unnecessary further losses from this devastating poultry disease.

Dr. Schoenfeld selected these from scores of others listed in a new condensed report on agricultural research accomplishments said to return 10 to 15 million dollars a year to the state. More than 300 problems are now under investigation and more than 100 others requested have been discontinued or not started for lack of funds.
