Town Talk

Wanted. Work horses. Will pay cash. Phone or write Walter Fargher, Dufur.

Miss Viola Hansen is having her seige of flu this week and has had to take a few hours off from her duties at the clerk's office.

Quite a number of interested farmers from this county were in The Dalles the first of the week to look in on the tractor company show of new models.

A social dance was given at the Harlandview grange last Friday night.

Mrs. Jessie Henrichs returned to her home here Saturday after spending several weeks in Portland receiving medical treatment.

Ted Guinan was in Goldendale the last of the week on a little business trip.

God gave the little squirrels acorns to eat, but He didn't throw them into their nests.

Victor Peterson, representing the Federal Land Bank of Spokane, has been in the county this week interviewing customers of his company.

Several car loads of wheat have been shipped out of the stations under the supervision of the grain growers office here this week. A great part of this wheat is consigned to the Farmers National.

Several friends dropped in on Mrs. L. L. Peetz last Saturday night and spent the evening playing cards. Five tables were surrounded by the players.

Kendrick Dunlap, who has been working in Moro for several weeks, spent the last week end at his home in Kent.

County Treasurer A. M. Young who has been confined to his home for several weeks is feeling a little better of late and is able to be up most of the time.

Charles Belshee drove to Portland Monday of this week. He was accompanied by A. von Borstel of Kent.

Bart Burrel parted with his tonsils at a hospital in The Dalles this week.

Harold Ginn was stuck tight in a snow bank between his place and Landry's Wednesday, the snow having blown off the plowed fields.

J. B. Coon was down from Grass Valley Thursday afternoon to look after a little business.

Quite a number of the dancing set of Moro were in Grass Valley last Friday night to the Charity Ball.

Rain seems to be in the offing as we go to press and just now it looks as if the snow will be gone in a few days.

The small boys and girls of town have spent a merry week sliding down the First street hill. With a big bonfire at the top to warm up with they work at playing every spare minute.

A birthday dinner was given at the T. B. Searcy home last Sunday when Miss Helen Searcy celebrated her eighteenth birthday with a few of her school friends.

MORO SCHOOL NOTES

Gordon Fraser, editor.
Last weeks campaign by the girls team proved successful while the boys dropped two games, one to Wasco and the other to Condon.

The Moro girls emerged victorious in their game with Wasco by a 34 to 15 score. The Moro forwards worked smoothly making the larger part of their shots count. In the meantime the guards were checking closely and preventing Wasco from scoring.

Although the boys lost by a score of 36 to 20 the game was close until the fourth quarter where the Wasco team drew away from Moro. Moro held a 20 to 15 lead at the half, but during the remainder of the game seemed to lose sight of the basket with all their shots going wild.

Saturday the boys played Condon on the Condon floor. The low ceiling hampered the Moro shots somewhat but the Moro team also was not playing up to par and as a result they returned on the short end of a 37 to 15 score.

Two boys of Moro have finished their high school work with the ending of this semester. These two are Elmer Nelson, and Blaine Miller.

A new noon hour system has been inaugurated by Mr. Walker. This system puts one senior a week in charge of the halls and lunch room. The slight disturbances which have occurred during the past two weeks during the noon hour seems to be the incentive for this system.

The class schedule has been changed somewhat along with the change of registration rooms.

From the looks of some of the grades on the report cards issued last week it would be a good policy for some of us to apply ourselves a little better.

Mortgage Adjustment Planned In State

A voluntary statewide committee authorized to set up a system of county and local farm mortgage adjustment committee has been provided for as the outcome of a recent preliminary gathering of interested agricultural and business representatives held recently in Salem. At this meeting which was called by Paul V. Mazis, director of extension work at Oregon State college, a temporary organization committee was authorized to set up a permanent state organization.

Through county and local committees to be set up by the state organization it is hoped to provide a means of affording fair and impartial information and assistance to both borrowers and lenders in farm mortgages on a purely voluntary basis, as the committees will have no legal standing. Such assistance, however, will afford a means of making suitable adjustments in principal and interest so as to avoid the economic wreckage that follows in the wake of wholesale foreclosures.

Similar state movements are being worked out successfully in the middlewest, notably in Iowa and Ohio where farm organizations, financial agencies and the college extension service are cooperating in meeting this serious problem that has arisen from the collapse of farm prices and land values.

Statistics presented at the first Salem meeting by L. R. Breithaupt, agricultural economist of the extension service, show that approximately 28,000 or 52 percent of Oregon farms are mortgaged. Estimates are that 40 per cent or more of these mortgages are now delinquent. When many of the debts were contracted, often for what appeared to be conservative expansion or improvement, the average cash income per farm in Oregon was around $2200 a year, but in 1932 estimates are an average of $950 per year.

Winter Wheat Crop Below Normal

Further deterioration in the domestic winter wheat crop was reported with conditions particularly unfavorable in Western Kansas. Considerable winter injury has also occurred in the Pacific Northwest but rains during the week relieved the drought and improved crop conditions in California. Fall sown grains in southern and central Europe are generally satisfactory although mild weather has caused rapid growth and some anxiety is apparent as to danger of winter killing. A full acreage has been seeded in the Danube Basin as a result of favorable seeding conditions and government aid in supplying seed wheat. Snow cover is reported abundant in this area but insufficient in important grain producing areas of Russia. Seedings in northern Europe are mostly fair to good with acreage about up to last season. The acreage in England and Wales is about 17 per cent over that of last year. Needed rains have been received in India in some areas and prospects are improving. The wheat acreage of the Punjab which comprises roughly one third of the total Indian acreage is sharply under that of last year and is placed at 9,172,000 acres compared with 10,787,000 acres the January forecast last year and a final estimate of 10,392,000 acres.

Harvesting in the Southern Hemisphere is nearing completion and marketings have increased. Australian shipments for the week totaled 6,403,000 bushels and a large percentage of which was to the Orient. Argentina exported 4,280,000 bushels making a total of 10,683,000 bushels from the Southern Hemisphere during the week and comprising more than half of the total world shipments. Yields in certain Australian districts are somewhat below earlier indications but in others outturn is satisfactory and the quality of the grain good.

Early reports suggest the heaviest wheat crop in several years. Eight cargoes of the new crop Australian wheat have already arrived at Shanghai and India has also taken some Australian grain. The low exchange value of Australian currency, the high quality of the new wheat and governmental aid in lowering production and marketing costs, place Australia in a particularly favorable competitive position in world markets. Exemption from the British tariff duty of 4 and one-eighth cents per bushel is an additional favorable influence and tends to stimulate British takings of Australian wheat. New Zealand, normally a deficit area, has a crop of around 10,000,000 bushels or about 2,500,000 bushels above normal domestic requirements. A wheat purchase Board established to administer the regulatory measures of a compulsory pool has fixed a price of 55 7-8 cents per bushels for wheat for domestic use and export price of 51 seven-eighths cents at current exchange values.

Do not wear elaborate sleeves; they emphasize the breadth of the shoulders.

Do not emphasize any cross lines, such as a broad band across the hips. Emphasize lengthwise lines in the center front and center back of costumes.

For slim women, Mrs. Sager emphasized three rules, as follows: Accent the outside lines of the figure, shoulders, sleeves or hips.

Have clothing fit; too loose clothing will emphasize the thinness of the figure.

Use flaring lines rather than straight lines.

Mrs. Sager pointed out that in general the bottom of the skirt, ankles and feet need study. "The beginning styles of 1933," she said, "call for medium and long skirts. The longer the skirt the taller the figure appears. Long skirts also add dignity and age. Thick ankles and large feet are not so noticeable with the present styles as they were a few years ago when skirts were knee length."

In the matter of fitting dress patterns, Mrs. Sager advises extremely large and extremely small persons to find the pattern that will fit the shoulders and then alter it to conform to the bust and other body measurements before cutting the dress.

"Good style," the clothing specialist concluded, "is produced not by following the latest fad or the newest idea, but from choosing from many suggestions those that will best express the character of the individual that will suit her face and figure, that will accent her good points and hide her less attractive ones so that she will appear as herself at her best all of the time."
