MORO SCHOOL NOTES

Gordon Fraser, editor.

Spring football is in progress this week with about sixteen boys turning out. Most of the time is spent in introducing the fundamentals of foot ball to the recruits; passing, punting and practicing new formations are also in evidence.

This years graduation will take a large part of last years team but there is enough material on hand to form an excellent team. Eight line-men will be missing from next falls team, these are: Blaine Miller, end; Harold Thogerson, center; Elmer Nelson, tackle; Lyle Woods, end; Delbert Rice, guard; Harry Ragsdale, guard; Paul Fraser, end; and Rolla Thogerson, guard.

Only two will be missing from the backfield these will be Donald Burnet and Tommy Fraser, halfbacks.

The line material is a bit light now but nearly every candidate for a line berth will be much heavier next fall. Backfield material is in abundance with three regulars of last year returning and four or five recruits of promise.

Friday, the Juniors and Seniors are having a breakfast at Buck Hollow. They will be joined at 9:00 o'clock by the Freshmen and Sophomores. The day will be spent in a good old-fashioned school picnic.

Lucille and Evelyn McLachlan entertained the high school students with a dancing party Wednesday evening.

These high-hat seniors strutting about the halls with their noses in the air seem to have forgotten they were green once themselves.

Nothing that is false ever does any body any good, said the soapbox orator.

I have false teeth and they do me a lot of good, retorted an old man in the audience.

Sowerbotts—How far can you trace your ancestry?
Scuppernon—Well, when my grand father resigned his position as cashier of a bank they traced him to Canada, but he got away.

A man is as good as he has to be, and a woman as bad as she dares.

Applicants must submit evidence that they are full licensed pharmacists, such license having been obtained as the result of examination before a State board of pharmacy. Certain specified education and experience are also required.

Sex of Chickens Determined Early

The time is not far distant when a poultryman desiring to raise 1000 pullets will order just enough more baby chicks to care for the ordinary mortality, rather than ordering twice as many knowing half of them will be cockerels. In fact that is the condition in Japan now, and two Japanese experts on sex determination in baby chicks recently visited Oregon State College and explained the method to poultry specialists and Oregon hatcherymen assembled there.

Before any ambitious hatcheryman hurries to Corvallis to find out all about this process, let it be said that being shown how it is done, and doing it with a reasonable degree of accuracy, are two different things—something like being shown how to play a piano. Skill and practice are the prime essentials, judging from the demonstration.

The method was shown to interested Oregonians by Hikosaburo Yogo, a trained expert in this work, whose tour in America at present is sponsored by the Japanese Poultry association and is under the leadership of Tokuzo Yamaguch, editor of the Japanese Poultry Journal.

In the demonstration at Corvallis, arranged by A. G. Lunn, head of the poultry department, Yogo took 100 day-old chicks from a local hatchery and quickly separated them in to two groups of 54 cockerels and 46 pullets, placing them at the rate of about 17 a minute.

Not content to let time reveal the percentage of accuracy, the group of cockerels were all killed and examined, post mortems revealing that Yogo was 100 per cent correct as far as that group was concerned. Naturally the pullets were left to grow. The method is based on a hasty but accurate manipulation and examination of the vent of the chick. A slight difference always exists between the male and the female, and this is detected by these trained experts. Japanese hatcherymen now commonly guarantee 96 per cent pullets in their sales, the visitors said. Unseparated chicks there sell for half price.

Salads Bring An Essence of Spring

The mode for spring vegetable salads is becoming universal. The chopped salad habit is a good one for they are not only easy to prepare but green vegetables are valuable for their vitamin and mineral content. Important too from the standpoint of adding roughage. These facts are also true of fresh fruits.

The chopped vegetables are mixed in a large bowl, blended with a dressing and served from the bowl at the table. This type of salad usually consists of shredded lettuce or cabbage, chopped celery, diced cooked carrots, peas, green peppers or parsley. Any combination of fresh green vegetables in season may be combined to make a tempting and appetizing salad.

The salad dressing is an important feature of salads because it carries the responsibility of combining the various flavors of the salad ingredients. By varying the dressings, serving in different combinations the salad will always be an interesting feature of the menu.

A few salad dressings which are to be recommended are:

Delicious Cooked Mayonnaise
Two tablespoons butter
Three tablespoons flour
One cup boiling water
Two egg yolks
One cup oil
One teaspoon each of salt, mustard, powdered sugar

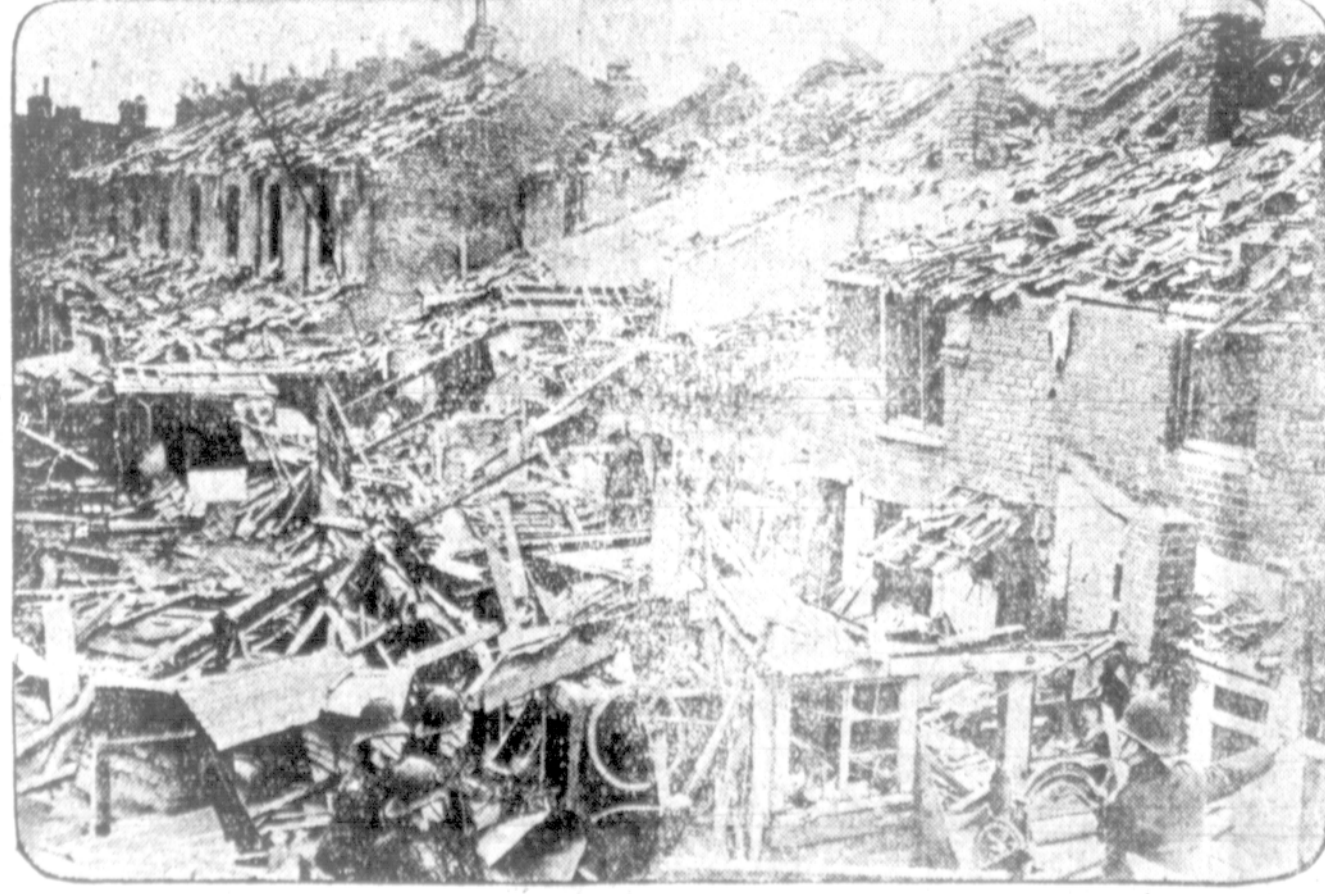

Three tablespoons vinegar
Three tablespoons lemon juice
Cook butter, flour and water together. Put remaining ingredients in bowl. Do not mix. Pour hot mixture over them and beat with Dover beater.

Cottage Cheese Dressing
Mix 1 and one-half teaspoons salt, a dash of pepper, and one teaspoon each of sugar and mustard with one egg. Pour into 3 tablespoons of vinegar scalded with 2 tablespoons of water. Cook until it thickens. Add one-half pound of cottage cheese and allow to cool. Serve on salad.

Fruit Salad Dressing
Cream 2 tablespoons of butter, to this add one teaspoon each of salt, and sugar, one-half teaspoon each of mustard and paprika. Put in double boiler 2 slightly beaten egg yolks, add to them very slowly beating constantly, 4 tablespoons of tarragon vinegar, cook until thick. Remove from the fire and add butter and seasoning, and beat thoroughly. When perfectly cold and ready to serve fold in three fourths cup of heavy cream whipped.

Cream Salad Dressing
Mix one-half teaspoon each of salt and mustard, one-fourth teaspoon of sugar, one egg slightly beaten, one-fourth cup cream, one-fourth cup of vinegar. Cook over hot water until it thickens. When it cools, add 2 tablespoons of dressing oil and one-half cup of Cream whipped.
