Katchewan and Central Alberta. 95 percent of the Alberta acreage is lower in condition than in 1932. Prospects have not changed materially since the first of June but rains would now be helpful in many sections, according to official Canadian reports.

State Organization Needed By Farmers

While nothing definite has yet been announced in the second week in June as to the proposed state organization under the federal farm act, nationally the "machinery" was getting about set up and progress was reported daily in getting the provisions of the act into effect, says the Oregon Extension service in its weekly review.

A summary of the accomplishments to date would include appointment of administrative heads under the act, holding of preliminary conferences dealing most basic commodities, preliminary work toward formation of scores of marketing agreements, as provided in the law, the holding of at least one final hearing on one such agreement, and the rapid application of the farm credit features of the new act.

Here in Oregon producers and distributors of farm products are already taking steps to find out what the opportunities will be under the trade agreements section of the farm act. This section permits producers and distributors to set up definite agreements intended to stabilize any given industry, which agreements may be enforced for the first time by the "big stick" of the licensing power of the federal department of agriculture. Several such groups have been conferring with George O. Gatlin, cooperative marketing specialist at the Oregon State College, to determine the best plan of action under the new law.

Large national groups, particularly in the milk production and distribution field, have been moving swiftly in all parts of the country in preparing preliminary agreements for consideration by the secretary of agriculture. The first of these to come to formal hearing stage was that for the Chicago milkshed.

Use of this section of the law in the dairy industry and in those enterprises not included under the "basic commodities" section of the law is considered a means of extending real advantages of the new farm policy to all sections of agriculture.

Meanwhile plans for acreage adjustment among the strictly basic commodities are going forward. In order to hurry these up so as to apply to this year's cotton crop, Senator Bankhead has sponsored an amendment to the National Recovery Act which would appropriate a fund for taking cotton land out of production yet this season. He believes the resultant rise in cotton prices would more than repay the government through increase in the value of the government cotton holdings.

ELECTRIC COOKING IS very economical IN MORO

Electric cookery is one of many services brought to your home over the wires of the Pacific Power & Light Company at a very reasonable cost. The average electric cooking bill is less than $3.50 a month—materially lower than the national average.

Electric cooking results are accurate and certain. The oven of the modern electric range stays at an even controlled heat; cooks foods just the way you want them. You always cook in comfort. Complete insulation prevents oven heat from escaping. Because electric heat is clean heat your walls, ceilings and curtains stay clean—pots and pans do not blacken. See the new 1933 electric ranges today—at your electric dealers or at our store.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high. But we do sell a high quality car at a low price. Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference. The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy. But with the purchaser it is different — he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years. Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales. Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy. There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car. Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy. Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one. It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

Henry Ford
