MORE VELVET
By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Seems as if we never will get enough of velvet, and let us hope we never will, for fabrics may come and fabrics may go but we are glad that designers are seeing to it that velvet stays with us forever. An intriguing thought which fashion creators are advancing just now is to add velvet accessories and trimmings to costumes of contrasting materials. This is working out in two ways in that many of the new print and crepe daytime frocks carry velvet details such as girdles, bows, belts and scarfs. At the same time evening gowns take unto themselves all sorts of cunningly devised little velvet wraps and other beguiling fantasies. The group pictured includes at the top a little green velvet caplet which crosses at the front in a unique manner. Below, to the right, is a white uncut velvet cape over a black velvet gown. To the left is shown a black transparent velvet jacket with ecclesiastic sleeves. The last number is a fetching waist-depth jacket of velvet in that very new yellow-red of which we are hearing so much this season. It is worn with a frock of white uncut velvet.

Wife—Do you think that will help him to get well?
Doctor—It will help him to save money so he can pay my bill.

A mountaineer who had been convicted of being a desperate quick-trigger fuodist was languishing in jail. His friends were trying to get a pardon for him from the governor, but the opposing clan were pulling wires against him and spreading all sorts of wicked reports regarding him. The culprit was finally moved to action by all this slander, and he wrote the governor saying: "Deer govner, if you-all has heard what I've heard you-all has heard, you-all has heard a lie."

"What did you rip the back part out of that new book for?" asked the long suffering wife of the absent minded doctor.

"Excuse me, dear," said the famous surgeon; "the part you speak of was labeled 'Appendix' and I took it out without thinking."

WOMEN NOW PREFER DOUBLE-DUTY DRESS

Two dresses have always been better than one, but now women prefer, above all, the single dress that is really two. Transformable clothes—originally an experiment to test out the possibility of thrifty fashions—have become big successes.

The fine feature of the transformable clothes is the fact that there is hardly an evidence of their double-duty background.

Time was when a transformation dress showed its taking-apart qualities at first glance; nowadays hardly a dress goes by in any fashion parade that doesn't look as if it might be taken apart and transformed—hence the dress which has this as its purpose is not set apart from others in any way.

FLASHES FROM PARIS

New suits stress drop shoulder line.
Brimmed hats—outnumber turbans.
Vells of every description flourish in the mode.
Plaided organdies register for evening gowns.
Idea of jewel ornamentation on furs is growing.
White hats with white neckwear is made a feature.
Return of the rustling silken petticoat is predicted.
The fez movement indicates a return to high crowns.

Now is the time when children's clothes take on a woolly aspect. Wool—best of the woolly are the rough-surface coatings, the tweeds, the chin-chillas, fleeces and Irish frieze, variously patterned and particularly good in the diagonal, writes Carolyn T. Radnor-Lewis in Child Life Magazine.

For the little girls there's no smarter coat than the straight from the shoulder type. Even their older sisters are all for the swaggar coats, and the fitted model with the higher waistlines, emphasized by seamings and occasionally by a belt, are the exception that proves the fashion rule. The one-sided effects are accented by bandings and buttons; braiddings and cordings form decorative motifs; and the wider shoulder effects are gained by drop yokes and raglan sleeves.

In the above picture the side details, wide shoulders affected by the raglan sleeve, stamp this a 1933 coat which may be worn with or without the belt. An unusual yoke gives a new look to the little dress appropriate for all fabrics. Separate one-piece panties.

ATTAINING A "PERFECT 32"
To maintain for her children a perfect 32 set of teeth is a goal which every mother of young children establishes for herself. Most mothers know too, that besides frequent trips to the family dentist and proper brushing twice a day, an adequate diet is necessary for sound teeth.
Practically every investigator in the field of dental research recognizes the importance of an adequate diet built around milk. This is because no other food is as dependable a source of minerals, calcium and phosphorus, the chief elements in the structure of the tooth, as is milk. Most authorities specify the following foods for use in controlling dental caries (tooth decay): A quart of milk daily, eggs several times a week, at least two liberal servings of green vegetables and a fruit daily, and after that most anything you like.
In an experiment with 690 children two scientists discovered that dental caries was prevented or adressed in all age of children and within a period of a few weeks when the diet was around these foods. When the children ate, every day, a well balanced diet including one quart of milk, fruit and vegetables, active dental decay was arrested and no caries developed.
Some recipes combining these dietary essentials are:
Corn and Cheese Souffle
Two cups of fresh corn
One tablespoon of butter
Five tablespoons flour
Two cups of milk

One teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
Two eggs
One half cup of cheese
Scald milk and add flour blended with cold milk. Add beater egg yolks, corn, grated cheese and seasonings. Fold in beaten whites. Bake in a buttered baking dish for 30 minutes in a 300 deg. oven.
Creamed Eggplant
One eggplant
Four tablespoons butter
Three tablespoons flour
One teaspoon salt
Two cups milk
Pare eggplant and cut in slices one half inch thick; thendice. Drop in 3 cups boiling water and boil Turn into white sauce, made of butter, flour, salt and milk; reheat Turn into hot serving dish and serve at once.
Chocolate Frost
Three eggs
Two tablespoons cocoa
Four tablespoons honey
Two cups milk
Combine cocoa and honey and bring to boil. Separate eggs. Beat yolks and add to cold milk; add crushed ice and two tablespoons of honey syrup. Whip whites until stiff and gradually add the remainder of hot honey and cocoa syrup. Put spoonful of egg white mixture into each glass, pour the milk mixture ver it, top with spoonful of the white. Dust lightly with nutmeg or cocoa and serve. (3 servings) A spoonful of ice cream may be substituted for the crushed ice.
